SHIP SEIZED BY RUSSIANS RETAKEN BY BRITISH CRUISERS

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

LONDON, July 20.—The P. & O. Steamship Malacca at Port Said to-dav with Russian prize crew aboard has been recaptured bv two British cruisers.

The steamship comp. y's officials here say they have word that the Malacca has been released.

PACKERS TO MEET THE STRIKERS

CHICAGO, July 20.—After thoroughly discussing the letter written Tuesday by the representatives of the various unions interested in asking for a joint conference with a view to adjusting the present difficulty, the packers agreed to meet the labor people this afternoon at the offices of Swift & Co. in the downtown district.

Several trainloads of imported help arrived this morning, and passed into the yards to the accompaniment only of sullen looks and catcalls. Among the "inside talent" that is engaged in the killing beds is Dr. Rupert Frederick Von Kotsch, a sur-

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Boston, July 20.—There were a lot that missed luncheon in order to get up early and secure the vantage points, as one of the sweetest crowds of the season gathered for the "two games, one admission" event billed with the Indians.

This was about the prize senior of the year with such a fine band of gladiators to furnish the music, and there is sure to be some high jinglers before the smoke clears away at the end of the eighteen innings.

The crowd came through at a great rate as the memory of those gala twelve rounds of yesterday still remained.

That strong southwest breeze that straightened the blue pennants out at the corner of the links was refreshing to the fans, and they prepared for a comfortable matinee.

"No even breaks for us to-day," chirped Jimmy Collins. "That boy Winter is in trim to do some starry stunts on the rubber and we'll use the whole force if necessary to bag this brace of sunny games.

"It's all over now with Cy Young going after the second conference, and altogether things should come our way."

ENGLAND STIRRED TO FURY

LONDON, July 20.—Russia has acted deliberately, in the seizures of British merchantmen in the Red Sea, with a view to provoking a breach with Great Britain, according to the prevailing sentiment throughout the kingdom to-day.

Nothing in recent years has so stirred the British public as the Malacca seizure, with the subsequent humiliation put upon the officers and crew of the steamship. Prompt and vigorous action is demanded vociferously by public and press, and apparently the government is acting aggressively.

MALACCA HELD AT PORT SAID.

The Malacca reached Port Said in charge of a prize Russian crew and officers. The British crew and officers were prisoners, and the protests of the passengers were unheeded. On cabled instructions from the British authorities, however, the Malacca is detained at Port Said, pending further investigation, and the British crew and officers landed. Only Russians now remain on the steamship.

The demand is heard on every side that Great Britain retake the Malacca by force of arms, regardless of consequences. War talk is indulged in in every quarter. Rumors are rife even that a declaration of war may follow by Great Britain, as a result of the seizure, which is construed practically as an act of hostility.

PASSENGERS ENRAGED.

A protest will be made to the government by the passengers of the Malacca. They are highly indignant at their treatment at the hands of the Russians. They have been transferred to the steamship Marmora, of the same line, and will proceed to their destination.

Captain Street, of the Malacca, protested vigorously against the seizure of his craft, and was treated brusquely by the Russians. When he repeated his protests after the prize crew was thrown on board of the steamer, he was threatened with close arrest.

None of the local officials of the Peninsula and Oriental Line were permitted to board the Malacca, and when the agent went out in a launch and requested permission to go on board he was rebuffed. It is stated that the Russian prize crew on the steamer consists of four Russian officers and forty-five men.

THUNDERER URGES FORCE.

The orders issued to the Mediterranean fleet are still a carefully guarded secret, but from the fact that cruisers have been dispatched toward Port Said the newspapers argue that the Malacca will never reach a Russian port. The Times demands that she be retaken, turned over to her British crew, and then sent back through the Suez Canal and Red Sea under guard of a warship.

In a slightly modified form all of the London papers re-echo this sentiment today, but whether the Government will go so far is, of course, at this time simply a matter of conjecture.

CALLS THEM PIRATES.

The Times asserts to-day that the legal advisers of the British Council of Defence have advised that the Russian volunteer fleet vessels in the Red Sea can be dealt with as pirates. In fact, that is the characterization of the Russian vessels in all of today's papers, and the attitude of belligerency is permeating every class of society.

That excellent barometer of internal conditions, the stock market, is hovering about the "storm mark" again to-day. The slump of yesterday in high-class issues was further accentuated to-day.

3,500 LOST IN TWO BATTLES

LONDON, July 20.—The Japanese advance under Generals Oku and Nodzu against the Russian positions near Tachi-Chao is well under way.

Heavy fighting, according to a New-Chwang dispatch, dated July 19, has been going on for several days. As a battle reported to have taken place near Tong-Shu, eight miles east of Tachi-Chao, the Russians are said to have lost 2,100 and the Japanese 1,200. The Japanese, it is said, have also been in active contact with the Russians east of Hai-Cheng, where many small skirmishes have taken place.

Tokio reports, under date of July 19, an attack on July 15 by the Japanese on the Russian positions on the heights seven miles south of Tachi-Chao. Ten thousand Japanese were pitted against 5,000 entrenched Russians, the latter being frequently reenforced. The fighting lasted from 4 a. m. to 1 in the afternoon, the Russians being finally dislodged with a loss of 200 killed.

Field Marshal Oyama had arrived at the front and is now said to be directing operations. A flank movement on Liaoyang is said to be under way.

SEIZE GERMAN SHIP SAMBIA

LONDON, July 20.—The Daily Mail's Hues correspondent, under date of July 19, says:

"The German steamer Sambia, it is stated, has been seized by the Russians, and is expected here to-morrow."

FLEET CHASES JAP VESSEL

TOKIO, July 20.—The Vladivostok fleet was sighted to-day pounding through the Tsugaru strait in pursuit of a Japanese vessel, the name of which is not known. The Russian vessel is the Japanese ship, but no further news of her fate has been received.

The destruction of the fleet is unknown, but there is a conviction that after raiding an attempt will be made to effect a junction with the Port Arthur squadron.

AWFUL JAP SLAUGHTER IN VAIN THIRD CHARGE AT NAN-SHAN

FALL RIVER WORKERS LINE UP FOR FIGHT

THREE GREAT MILL CRAFTS ANGRY AT PROPOSED CUT DOWN AND TALK OF STRIKE.

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, July 20.—The question of whether or not the employes of the Fall River cotton mills will go on strike will be decided this evening.

All the union operatives of the five crafts—weavers, spinners, carders, slasher tenders and loom fixers—will act on the acceptance of the pending reduction of 12½ per cent, and a written request for the permission and sanction of the United Textile Workers of America in the event of a strike has already been granted by that body.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETS.

The Executive Board of the United Textile Workers of America met here this morning. Those present at the meeting were:

General president, John Golden, Fall River; general secretary, Albert Hibbert, Fall River; general treasurer, James Whitehead, Fall River; vice-presidents, James Tansey, Fall River; Thomas Taylor and Thomas O'Donnell, Fall River; Samuel Ross, New Bedford; James Cliffe, Pawtucket; Robert Burr, Paterson, N. J.; Herman Weber, Passaic, N. J.; Michael J. Conner, Thompsonville, Conn.; Arthur Blanchette, Lawrence, and Thomas Holland, Derby, Conn.

"TIME TO SAY SOMETHING."

General President John Golden, reminded of his rather caustic words recently published, said to an AMERICAN representative today:

"It is high time to say something, with things growing worse. Fall River is always chosen for the first cut in wages, and then the manufacturers cry out that the mines are always making trouble here. "I was talking with a number of the most intelligent operatives this morning. They said they were tired of walking the streets, and proposed to get out of the city. Soon we shall be unable to boast, as in the past, of having the best skilled weavers in the world in Fall River.

"I have studied the industry in our great textile centres, including the Southern mills, and Fall River runs the highest-speed machinery in use, and, all conditions considered, the rate of wages paid here is no greater than that in other Northern centres, while in the Southern mills the lack of skill, speed and sufficiency of help fully offsets any difference in wages schedule."

A spirit of rebellion against the conditions that exist here was stimulated by a vigorous statement issued by John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers' Association of America.

"There are too many leeches," he declared, "sucking the life blood out of the cotton industry in our city."

The unions that are to hold meetings tonight are the carders, spinners, weavers and loom fixers. It is believed that some of the unions at least will vote unqualifiedly to strike. The weavers and slashers, it is thought, will favor such action. The condition is little short of unbearable, they declare, and the feeling in their ranks is very hostile. The spinners and loom fixers may accept the proposed cut under protest and refer the whole matter to the Textile Workers' association.

PAWTUCKET MILL RESIST CUTDOWN

Special to the Boston American.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 20.—The operatives employed by the United States Cotton Company are not going to submit tamely to the cut in wages advertised to go into effect July 26.

Arrangements were hurriedly made to hold a monster open-air meeting on Railroad street, near the mill, to-night, to protest against the proposed reduction. Prominent labor leaders in Pawtucket and the Blackstone Valley have been invited to address the meeting.

geon for Swift & Co., and said to be a member of a German noble family.

Prices of meat on down-town restaurant bills of fare have been raised 10 per cent or more as a result of the strike. The action was taken at the instance of the Hotel Keepers' Association. While several of the restaurants had a supply of meat sufficient for one month, without exception they raised prices.

A new element has been injected into the packing house situation. There has appeared on the scene, at the request of President Roosevelt, a representative of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

This courier from Washington and Oyster Bay began a quiet investigation into the labor troubles. It is asserted that no official interference will be made, but that the President desires only information at present. At the same time there was marked activity by United States District Attorney Bethea and the secret service.

Major Harrison announced that he would postpone his annual Summer vacation until the end of the strike.

The packers say they are getting out fifty per cent. of their normal output with the aid of non-union employes. They are furnishing free bread and free ice to the families of the strikers.

ANOTHER DROP IN LOCAL MEAT PRICES

There was a general cut in the price of meat to-day from one to one and one-half cents a pound. This did not alter the situation, however, and the demand was still far below normal, resulting in an over-supply in spite of small receipts from the West.

Danger of a famine, however, is obviated by the independents, who can still ship beef from the West, and who are taking advantage of conditions to run their packing plants over to their full capacity. A scarcity of beef is probable within a fortnight, but there will be no famine.

A. E. Hughes, a well-known commission man of North Market street, said to-day to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"The situation in Boston is unique. In spite of the strike there is more meat in the coolers here than can be disposed of. The wholesalers and jobbers cannot sell to the retailers at any price, because there is no demand. As soon as the people realize that there is plenty of meat, however, and the demand becomes normal again, there will be a scarcity of dressed meat until shipments are resumed.

A dispatch from New York by leased wire to the BOSTON AMERICAN says that college students have turned strike breakers, nearly 100 having already applied for work at the Chicago yards. The packers are continually importing squads of strike breakers from various Eastern points.

EAMES TO FIGHT ALIENATION SUIT

Aged Clubman to Spend Last Cent to Clear Name of Farnsworth's Charges.

LATTER ASKS FOR $20,000

"It will be a fight to the finish. Every dollar I have will go, if necessary, for the defense of my good name," said Charles E. Eames, this morning, regarding the suit for $20,000 that has been brought against him by Henry D. Farnsworth for alleged alienation of his wife's affections. Mr. Eames is a retired merchant and well-known clubman. The papers in the case were served yesterday.

Any claims that Mrs. Farnsworth and I went to Nova Scotia at various times, and that she was my traveling companion in 1903, when I visited Colorado, are false," said Mr. Eames.

Mr. Eames is sixty years old. Mrs. Farnsworth is thirty-two. He is a widower and lives with his daughter at No. 752 Franklin street, Melrose. She is the daughter of George Rice, who amassed a large fortune as a railroad contractor, and was prominent in public life for over thirty years, and the niece of Colonel Edmund Rice, U. S. A., who commanded the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment in the Spanish War, and took the Twenty-Sixth Volunteers to the Philippines. Her brother is Chaplain George Rice of the Twenty-seventh United States Regulars.

Mrs. Farnsworth is very beautiful. Her home is with her mother at No. 783 Franklin street, across the street from Mr. Eames's mansion. Both estates are handsome.

Farnsworth, who brings the suit, is thirty-six years old and lives at No. 17 Essex street, Malden. He formerly conducted a haberdashery in Boston.

"I cannot say that I am surprised," was all Mrs. Farnsworth would say this morning regarding the suit.

LIGHTNING RAISED A GEYSER.

EAST BROOKFIELD, July 20.—A geyser fifty feet high was raised in Lake Lashaway by a lightning bolt striking the water. It was seen by passengers waiting on a turnout on the Warren, Spencer & Brookfield line. The lake waters were fairly boiling for a circle of ten feet around the geyser. Many dead fish floated on the surface after the water calmed down.

CREW FIGHTS SWORDFISH

NANTUCKET, July 20.—The fishing steamer Petrel, Captain Arthur C. Manter, returned yesterday from a day's trip, breaking all previous records for one day's work.

Soon after passing the island of Tuckernuck, on the way out, a small school of swordfish was sighted, and ten were captured.

Mate Barrett and Charles Thomas had an exciting encounter with one of the smallest of the lot after it had been struck. They were "hauling line," when the fish suddenly turned and drove its sword through the bottom of the dory, boring a large hole, through which the water began to pour. Hastily removing their canvas mittens, which are worn while dog fishing and swordfishing, the men plugged up the opening and again attacked the ugly captive, this time killing and bringing it alongside.

CANDAGE WEDS; KEEPS IT STILL

"Miss Olive Margaret Covell, of Roxbury, must be an accomplished young woman to have drawn 'Captain Bob' Candage from his love of travel and adventure into the bonds of married life," is the general conclusion of friends of the young Brookline bride-groom after recovering from their surprise at the secret wedding of the couple.

The secrecy with which "Captain Bob" and his bride-elect planned their nuptials can be estimated when it is stated that even the mother of the bridegroom did not know she had a daughter-in-law till she received a letter from her son, calmly telling her he had married Miss Covell.

Robert O. Candage, a son of Captain R. F. O. Candage, of Keat street, Brookline, "Captain Bob," Sr., is one of Brookline's most influential men. His son is twenty-five years old. He is tall, powerfully built and athletic.

He became acquainted with Miss Covell, of Roxbury, a year ago. She is an attractive young woman, now twenty-two years old.

ELKS ELECT O'BRIEN GRAND EXALTED RULER

Grand Lodge in Session at Cincinnati Unable to Choose Grand Secretary.

PARADE THE BEST EVER

CINCINNATI, July 20.—The Grand Lodge, B. P. O. E., to-day elected William J. O'Brien, of Baltimore, Grand Exalted Ruler, by a vote of 716 to 397 for Samuel H. Needs, of Cleveland. Other officers elected were: John K. Tener, of Charleroi, Penn., Grand Treasurer; F. C. Tomlinson, of Winston N. C, Grand Esteemed Loyal Knight; Charles W. Hofman, of Hoboken, N. J., Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight; W. W. McClelland, of Pittsburg, Grand Tyler; R. J. Woods, of Sioux Falls, S. D., Grand Esteemed Leading Knight; R. F. McNulty, of San Antonio, Tex., Grand Trustee.

The last vote for grand secretary resulted: Fred C. Robinson, Dubuque, Iowa, 167; J. E. A. Burke, Richmond, Va., 155; David W. Watson, Terre Haute, Ind., 71; Charles Stager, Toledo, 6.

It was found to be impossible to choose a secretary, so an adjournment was taken until after the parade, which was voted the best ever held by the order.

The Philadelphians were evening dress. The "cotton pickers from Greenville, Miss., had the most unique display in the parade. Each person marching was blacked to represent a Southern negro.

Louisville Lodge had 175 men in line dressed in "Uncle Sam" costumes. The members of the Hoboken (N. J.) Lodge were attired as Jersey farmers. Baltimore Lodge members were attired as Arabians. Nashville Elks were attired as jockeys.

Joliet members were dressed as convicts. Each member of Tampa, Fla., lodge wore an outer coat made of genuine Cuban tobacco and costly Panama hats. A live, sticking alligator was attached to the coat of each marcher. The men smoked imported cigars sixteen and one-half inches in length.

Sixty members of Houston, Tex., lodge wore uniforms made from rice straw and represented Japanese.

1,000 WANT TO WED HEROINE

NEW YORK, July 20.—Mary McCann, a seventeen-year-old girl, who, although only three days out of the hospital at North Brothers Island, where she had been ill with scarlet fever, saved six people from drowning after they had jumped from the burning steamer General Slocum, has received more than 1,000 letters containing offers of marriage. She declares she will receive no more mail unless the offers cease.

THE SUMMER COLIC SEASON

Some of the Causes and How to Prevent It

Aside from over-ripe fruits, one of the most frequent causes of sudden stomach ills, colic and indigestion is exposure to a chill—it may be during a drive in the night air, or by unexpected change of temperature. The chill causes suspension of circulation and digestion, and should be guarded against by a timely cup of Sanford's Ginger. It quickly restores the circulation, warms the extremities, centres the blood at the stomach and promotes digestion, besides instantly relieving the cramping pains. Sanford's Ginger cures all forms of summer ills. For summer colds, chills, indigestion, bowel troubles, weakness, nervousness and sleeplessness during hot weather, for change of water, food, climate and fatigue inseparable from travel, and a hundred every-day ills, Sanford's Ginger is of priceless value. Besides, it's always healthful. We say it again, be sure you get Sanford's; there is no other "just as good," and no honest dealer will try to make you take a cheap, worthless substitute.

LAWSON DEALS SHARP THRUSTS AT H. H. ROGERS

Real Brains of Standard Oil Combine, Relentless in Plundering the Public.

MORE FRENZIED FINANCE

The second installment of Thomas W. Lawson's series of articles entitled "Frenzied Finance: The Story of Amalgamated," spears in the August issue of Everybody's Magazine. This installment is largely devoted to the personnel of the "Standard Oil Crowd," the men whom Mr. Lawson holds responsible for the "Crime of Amalgamated."

Chief of these, in Mr. Lawson's estimation, is Henry H. Rogers, whom the writer places ahead of either of the Rockefellers in power and ability. William Rockefeller comes next in the estimation of Mr. Lawson, with John D. Rockefeller comparatively in the background. The great financial schemes of "Standard Oil" are devised by H. H. Rogers and William Rockefeller.

"Standard Oil" is the "system" which, Mr. Lawson declared in his forecast last month, has been responsible for millions of losses, scores of defalcations and as many suicides. The home of the "system" is "26 Broadway," the appellation given the world over the big office building on Lower Broadway, New York, occupied by the Standard Oil Company. "Standard Oil," Mr. Lawson says, "is a dual affair, the seller of oil to the people and the group of owners who have the right to use the name." Of the latter he says:

The Standard Oil Trio.

"There are only three men who can lend the name 'Standard Oil' even in the most remote way, to any project, for there is no more heinous crime in the 'Standard Oil' decalogue than using the name 'Standard Oil' unauthorizedly. The three men are Henry H. Rogers, William Rockefeller, and John D. Rockefeller. Sometimes John D. Rockefeller uses the name alone in projects in which Mr. Rogers and William Rockefeller have no interest. Mr. Rogers or William Rockefeller seldom, if ever, use the name in projects with which neither of the other two is associated. Sometimes, but not often, John D. and William Rockefeller use the name in connection with projects of their own in which Mr. Rogers has no interest. Mr. Rogers and John D. Rockefeller, I believe, never are associated in projects in which William Rockefeller has no interest. Mr. Rogers and William Rockefeller frequently use it in connection with their joint affairs in which John D. Rockefeller has no interest, and during the past ten years it has been used more in their undertakings than in all others."

The Standard Oil Code.

The code of "Standard oil" is given by Mr. Lawson as follows:

1. Keep your mouth closed, as silence is gold, and gold is what we exist for.

2. Collect our debts to-day. Pay the other fellow's debts to-morrow.

3. Conduct all our business so that the buyer and the seller must come to us. Keep the seller waiting; the longer he waits the less he'll take.

4. Make all profitable bargains in the name of Standard Oil debatable ones in the names of dummies.

5. Never put "Standard Oil" trades in writing, as your memory and the other fellow's forgetfulness will always be re-enforced with our organization.

6. As competition is the life of trade—our trade; and monopoly the death of trade—our competitors' trade—employ both judiciously.

7. Never enter into a "butting" contest with the government. Our government is by the people and for the people, and we are the people, and those people who are not us can be hired by us.

8. Always do right. Right makes might, might makes dollars, dollars make right, and we have the dollars.

Seldom Seen by the Public.

Mr. Lawson pays a high tribute to the personality and masterful character of Henry H. Rogers. In his character sketch of the Standard Oil magnate he says:

"Did my readers ever hear of the National Transit Company? Very few have—yet the presidency of it is ranked with that of Henry H. Rogers. When the world is lading our honors to the Standard Oil kings, and speaking of their wondrous riches, how often is Henry H. Rogers mentioned? Not often, for he is never where the public can get a glimpse of him—he is too busy pulling the wires and playing the buttons in the shadows just behind the throne.

"Had it not been that the divinity which disposes of what men propose, compelled this man, as he neared the end of his remarkable career, to come into the open on Amalgamating, he might never have been known as the real Master of 'Standard Oil.' But if he use missing when the public is hurrahing, he is sufficiently in evidence when clouds lower or when the danger signal is run to the mast-head at 26 Broadway.

"He, who trade Standard Oil history, will note that, from its first day until this day, whenever the bricks, cabbages, or aged eggs were being presented to Standard Oil always was Henry H. Rogers's towering form and defiant eye in the foreground where they flew thickest."

Made in Image of His God.

Mr. Lawson devotes considerably more space and is more lavish of encomium to Mr. Rogers, his arch antagonist, than he is to either John D. Rockefeller. Of these two great powers in the world of finance he says:

"John D. Rockefeller, however great his ability or worldly success, can be fully described as a man made in the image of an ideal money-maker and an ideal money-maker made in the image of a man. A foot-note should call attention to the fact that an ideal money-maker is a machine, the details of which are diagrammed in any of the blue-prints already in circulation.

AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS IN BRITISH PRISON

FLORENCE MAYBRICK IS FREE

MRS. FLORENCE MAYBRICK.

AMERICAN WOMAN FREED FROM BRITISH PRISON.

Started from Truro, Cornwall, England, To-day, to Meet Her Mother in France.

Last Chapter of Noted Murder Case Begins; to Make America Her Home.

LONDON, July 20.—The London Daily Times announces that Mrs. Florence Maybrick was liberated from the detention home at Truro, Cornwall, to-day.

While all information regarding the whereabout of Mrs. Maybrick is carefully withheld at the office of the Home Secretary it is generally believed that she left Truro, Cornwall, at 11:43 a. m. for France in charge of a warden. She will meet her mother there.

Mrs. Maybrick is not free, but is on a ticket-of-leave, under the terms of which, if rigidly enforced, she will be obliged to remain in England and report herself at periodical intervals to the authorities.

However, in view of her promise to go to America and stay there, the Government has withdrawn the usual conditions, and she will be free to go her way and choose her own path as soon as she arrives in New York, for which port she will sail without delay.

Taken From Her Cell.

The first information the public received that Mrs. Maybrick had been freed from prison was on February 4, last, when Home Secretary Akers-Douglas in the House of Commons declared that Mrs. Maybrick had been removed from the Aylesbury prison and had been taken to a convalescent home, where she would remain for the summer.

This action on the part of the English government was almost without precedent. It was in a great measure due to the efforts of the Duchess of Bedford, who had been a visitor for many years at the prison and had taken a great interest in the welfare of Mrs. Maybrick.

Through her influence she was able to secure a mitigation of the prisoner's sentence, by which Mrs. Maybrick has been able to spend the last six months of it outside prison walls, although still a prisoner.

Mrs. Maybrick, who was Miss Florence Elizabeth Chandler, and a member of a well known and prosperous southern family, was married July 27, 1881, in St. James's Church, Piccadilly, to James Maybrick, of Liverpool. She was then eighteen years of age, vivacious and beautiful and a social favorite. Her husband was over forty years old. In the spring of 1889 Mr. Maybrick became ill, and in a few days he died. His brothers investigated his death, and charged Mrs. Maybrick with the murder of her husband. A long trial followed, and a number of doctors swore Mr. Maybrick died of arsenical poisoning.

Sentenced to Death.

The defence proved that for twenty years Mr. Maybrick had been a confirmed arsenic eater, and that he daily took doses that would have killed a dozen ordinary men. Mrs. Maybrick eventually was sentenced to death by the jurge, Sir Fitzjames Stephen, who spoke for two days in charging the jury, and who said it was impossible for them to find her not guilty in the face of the medical evidence. He died some time later in a madhouse.

Mrs. Maybrick secured a commutation of the death sentence to penal servitude for life.

From the time of Mrs. Maybrick's conviction her mother, the Baroness E. von Roques, has been unremitting in her attempts to obtain the prisoner's release, in which she has been aided by influential friends on both sides of the Atlantic. In 1900, after the death of Lord Russell, of Killowen, Chief Justice of England, a letter which he had written to Mrs. Maybrick in 1895 was discovered. It showed that the eminent lawyer was convinced that she ought never to have been convicted.

Release Had Been Promised.

The Home Office announced, March 23, 1903, that Mrs. Maybrick would be released in 1904, and the authorities authorized Mrs. Maybrick's Washington lawyers to use the fact of her release this year as a reason for securing the postponement of the trial of lawsuits in which the prisoner was interested, bearing on land in the states of Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia, until she is able to personally testify. Her presence at the fulfilment of Mrs. Maybrick to testify in the suits would cause the loss to her and her mother of all title and interest in large tracts of land amounting to some 2,500,000 acres, and stated to be worth $12,000,000.

MOB RUNS DOWN AGED WOMAN'S ASSAILANT

AFTER BRUTAL ATTACK AND ALLEGED ROBBERY, YOUNG MAN IS ARRESTED.

Chased by a crowd of men and boys, to-day, Walter Raymond gave up his flight only after desperate resistance. He is charged with robbery and brutal attack on Alice A. Kennedy, an aged woman who keeps a small variety store at No. 230 Adams street, Dorchester.

Mrs. Kennedy lives in a room in the rear of the store. She was alone there when she heard someone enter the front door. Stepping quickly into the store, she was startled to see a young man at work on the money till behind the counter.

In a moment she was grappling with the intruder. Despite her age Mrs. Kennedy was holding her own when she was struck in the face. She went down in a heap.

Her screams startled the neighborhood. As the young man cleared the counter with a bound and ran through the door he found several men coming to the assistance of the aged storekeeper. He rushed by them before they were aware that he was assisted. When Mrs. Kennedy showed her bruised face to those who went in, the crowd turned and ran like mad after the fleeing young man.

The chase was through the thickly settled portion of Adams street and the crowd grew in numbers. Young Raymond was headed off. He was seized by angered hands and the crowd was about to punish him more severely when officers of the Dorchester station arrived on the run and took the young man in charge.

Mrs. Kennedy preferred charges of robbery and assault against the young prisoner. She claims that he stole $2 from the till. Her face was seriously bruised where she had been struck.

Raymond gave his age as seventeen years and said that he lived at No. 5 Melvinside Terrace, Savin Hill.

BOY SAVING 4 LIVES MAY GET MEDAL

A Move Made for Carnegie Recognition of Young Hero of Worcester.

BRAVE RESCUE OF SISTER

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, July 20.—Lake Quinsigamond residents will try to secure a Carnegie hero medal for eleven-year-old Ernest Gauthier, who has saved four children from drowning by expert work with his canoe and exercise of courage and coolness. One of the last two he pulled out of the water was his ten-year-old sister, Laura Gauthier, who is a cripple. He did not know till he had brought the girl into his canoe that it was his own sister he had saved.

She can swim quite well, in spite of her physical handicap. She was in the water with her playmate, Marguerite Webb, fourteen years old, teaching her to swim.

The Webb girl suddenly became exhausted. She grabbed her crippled companion and both went down.

Gauthier was on shore. He heard screams. He jumped into his canoe in a flash, paddled out and brought both girls ashore. His pleasure was multiplied when he found his own sister was one of those he had saved.

Two weeks ago Gauthier was out in his canoe. Two nine-year-old boys were tipped out from another canoe near him. He jumped into the water and swam to the first boy, brought him back to his canoe, then went after the other, bringing him back. Gauthier paddled ashore with his two charges.

LYNN WOMEN PROTEST AGAINST MAYOR'S SLIGHT

ARMED WITH SCYTHES AND PITCHFORKS, PEASANTS ATTACK GOELETS!

MRS. ROBERT GOELET PHOTO BY EICKEMEYER

FAIR AMERICAN ATTACKED BY PEASANTS IN AUSTRIA.

Millionaire and Bride Have Narrow Escape in Upper Austria.

Special Cable to Boston American.

VIENNA, July 20.—Robert Goelet, of New York, and his bride, formerly Miss Elsie Whelen, of Philadelphia, were making the trip from Paris to Vienna in an automobile, and when near Peiling, in Upper Austria, last Thursday, the chauffeur put on high speed along a country road. A harvest cart, laden with corn and driven by a peasant boy, approached. The horses took fright at the puffing auto, and dumped the cart by the roadside, burying the boy under the load.

Peasants who had witnessed the accident from the fields rushed to the scene. When the boy was extricated and it was seen that he was badly bruised, they surrounded the automobile, brandishing pitchforks, scythes and clubs.

Mr. Goelet sought to placate them by offering the boy's father a thousand-franc note. The man spurned the money, and this action further inflamed the peasants. One of their number was dispatched to inform the gendarmes that the boy had been killed, and the rest pressed forward to attack the Americans.

Mr. Goelet, fearing for the lives of his party, drew his revolver and ordered the chauffeur to draw likewise. Then, with leveled pistols, they backed to the auto and jumped aboard and turned back toward Mauerkirchen at top speed. There they told their story to the authorities, an engineer named Wagner acting as interpreter, and Mr. Goelet was fined a small sum.

The peasantry in the neighborhood are so wrought up over the affair that Mr. Wagner has sent a warning here to Americans not to use that route for the present, as it would be dangerous.

LABOR

UNITED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL 1896 BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON CENTRAL LABOR UNION and the Structural Building Trades Alliance have joined hands in the fight to stamp out the pernicious system and other impositions of which complaint has been received from Italian laborers and general workmen.

In response to a plea received from the Italian workmen both these organizations have pledged to endorse any action what ever Italian Laborers' Union may take.

BREAK IN STRIKE RANKS.

Another break in the ranks of the striking at Sydney, C. B., has occurred. The pattern makers who have been out since the Dominion Iron and Steel Company's plant have returned to work in a body. The pattern makers are the first skilled workmen to return. The men still out are quiet.

LABOR NOTES.

A cut of 12½ per cent. in wages has been announced at the Simond Co., Fall River.

The Talbot mills, at North Billerica, will close down for two weeks, beginning July 30th.

INSTALL NEW OFFICERS.

Boston Electrical Workers' Union held an installation of officers last evening and also elected officers to the Central Labor Union. The committee intrusted with the arrangements for the annual picnic of the union to be held at Apollo Gardens, August 13, reported that the work had almost been completed and everything pointed to a great success.

The officers installed were: President, William H. Reid; vice-president, Thomas F. Bannon; recording secretary, J. A. Mc-Innis; financial secretary, L. MacLeod.

The delegates to the Central Labor Union are James Aylward, Timothy Murphy, Michael Birmingham, William H. Reid, William Buchanan, Thomas Bannon, George McDonald, Dan R. McKenzie and Daniel McDonald.

The new Executive Committee elected is as follows: Duncan MacLeod, George McDonald, Michael Birmingham, James Aylward, John A. McInnis, William H. Reid, Timothy Murphy and John J. McKenzie.

BARBERS TO WEAR BUTTONS.

Henceforth the union barbers of the city will wear a button in the lapel of the coat as evidence that they are union workmen. The local union has appointed a committee to select a design.

Owing to the resignation of President Martin Mellalie it was necessary for the union to elect a successor at the last meeting. Christopher Mallen was elected.

The union has decided to organize the barbers of Chelsea, and Business Agent Charles E. O'Donnell has been instructed to visit Chelsea for this purpose.

Eight new union card shops have been issued. A committee was appointed to arrange for a barber excursion for the members and their families some time during August. Over forty new members were admitted to membership in the Union.

The resignation of Vice-President Chauncey W. Griffin has been accepted, and a special call for an election to fill that position has been made for a meeting on Tuesday, August 2.

Miss Wetherell, Who Criticised Eastham's Slight, Makes Further Defence of Her Sex.

By Priscilla Standish.

His Honor Henry W. Eastham, Mayor of Lynn, does not like women. Moreover, I think he's afraid of them.

In the SUNDAY AMERICAN he made a signed statement regarding Lynn, its institutions and its men.

Sunday afternoon the women held a mass meeting and asked why, with emphasis, had he neglected to mention the women of the past and especially the 9,000 workers of the day who have helped make Lynn famous.

Yesterday I called on him. I was anxious to clear up two somewhat vague points. First, why he omitted the women of Lynn in his resume of the city's great men; second, what he thought of the utterances of Miss Ellen Wetherell and her many followers.

All the way, as the "narrow gauge" train puffed along past Orient Heights and Point of Pines, I framed questions to fire at His Honor and speculated as to his replies.

Expected Regret.

I hadn't a doubt as to the sincerity of his regret and humility. In these days it is no small omission to forget 9,000 women workers, to say naught of feminine stay-at-homes, in sizing up a situation.

In my mind's eye I saw him, simply crushed by criticism, eager to square himself by giving an eleventh hour tribute full of fragrant compliment to the neglected women.

Ah! Never again will I trust the visions of that mind's eye.

Outside Lynn's City Hall the sun beat fiercely down. From the greensward at the foot of the stone steps leading to the Mayor's castle a jet of water spurted from the emerald turf.

Three small urchins lying in the grass screamed with delight as the edge of the whirling spray sprinkled their dusty faces, and scampered around to meet it at the other side and feel its grateful coolness again.

A Peaceful Scene.

Surely it was a peaceful scene, and one calculated to inspire hope and confidence in one's heart.

At the right of the main corridor, in a small anteroom, labeled "Entrance to Mayor's office," a pretty girl, dressed all in white, clicked a typewriter busily.

She took my card to the Mayor and he came out immediately, a worried looking, nervous little man, with black mustache, and in his shirt sleeves.

He recognized my presence by the fraction of a bow.

"I have not a word to say," he declared, in response to my question as to why he had not included Lynn's women in his remarks.

"You'll not get me to say one word. There is no reason why I should."

"Then you don't intend to defend yourself against Miss Wetherell's charge of neglect?"

"I won't say a word," he said, savagely, as he ignored me and gave some orders to his secretary.

He kept close to the door leading to his inner office, and glanced at it to make sure it was a safe retreat.

"It's made quite a bit of trouble among the women? I suggested. "I don't know about any trouble," he said.

"Perhaps to-morrow or some other day you'll talk to me?"

"No, I won't" he answered, "I'll not be interviewed about it to-day or any other day," and he fairly flashes through the door and closed it—bif! bang!

Instead of being hurt, I was amused.

In a Bad Humor.

The Mayor of Lynn was evidently in a bad humor.

I saw a gilt band over the door pointing to another farther down the corridor, which also led to his office.

Perhaps His Honor might have a sunny side to his nature, after all, if I only approached him in the right direction. So I entered a cool council chamber and knocked on a door. There was no response. I knocked again. Silence.

Once more I tried it.

There was a hurried step, the key was turned and the door flung open.

"Won't you just grant me a brief statement?" I pleaded.

The Mayor came out, closed the door behind him, and sat nervously on the arm of a settee.

"Now, why should I talk," he asked, "when I've nothing to say?"

"Evidently you don't believe in Equal Rights for Women."

"I don't intend to be interviewed."

"Don't you believe in the work of Lynn women?"

"I won't talk," he declared.

"I'm very much disappointed," I said. "The AMERICAN sent me here to give you the chance to say something as to your reason for neglecting the women as they claim you have done."

"You'll not get a word from me. I've nothing against the AMERICAN, but I'm not obliged to talk to it, or any other paper, just to save an employe from disappointment.

Door Closed Again.

"You'll not get a word. I made a statement to the paper, and that's enough."

And biff! bang! Once more the door was shut, the Mayor had gone and I was alone.

"What a funny little cross Mayor," I mused, "and all I wanted to do was to give him a chance to square himself with the feminines."

Some one told me later that Mayor Eastham calls the Equal Rights Club a lot of cranks. As a matter of fact, he has accepted their hospitality, and at a reception the club gave he and Miss Ellen Wetherell led the grand march.

"He was most courteous, of course, then," said Miss Wetherell, "and seemed to enjoy himself. Indeed, the Mayor has been the biggest guest of honor at several Women's Clubs here, and has made himself quite agreeable on such occasions."

No Further Action.

Miss Wetherell said she did not think the club would take any further action. Of course she and her colleagues are constantly laboring for the betterment of the condition of woman.

Miss Wetherell has many original ideas relative to woman's status in the world. When the unions have occasionally grumbled at woman's taking man's place, Miss Wetherell has declared to the contrary. In going into the shoe factories and the various other factories she contends that women are only going back to their own.

Formerly woman was engaged in all domestic manufactures.

It was she who made carpets, curtains, clothes, including the cloth as well. It was she who made the candles which in olden time furnished the only light.

In going out into the world and doing what she once did in her own home, Miss Wetherell declares that she is only doing her own work.

And for that work, and all else she accomplishes, Miss Wetherell wants her to have full credit, even from Mayor Eastham.

"IGNORED WOMEN BECAUSE THEY ARE NOT POLITICIANS"

By Mary A. Livermore

In the main, I agree with Miss Wetherell and her sister, Mrs. Judge Berry, in the course they have taken in regard to Mayor Eastham. I have frequently been to Lynn to lecture for them, for we are all members of the Massachusetts Suffrage Association, of which Alice Stone Blackwell, Julia Ward Howe and Mrs. Ednah Cheney are also members.

Mayor Eastham has no malicious intent in his article. He ignored women as most men do, because we are not political factors and cannot vote. The majority of office holders have regard only for those who vote.

WOMEN IGNORED; THE CUT DOUBLY PAINFUL

By Ella A. Gleeson,

State President of the W. C. T. U.

One can't wonder that Mayor Eastham entirely overlooked the women when he spoke of Lynn as a successful city, because there is such a big class of men that ignore women, or else consider women beneath them. The very fact that Mayor Eastham seems to have written his article entirely unconscious of and oblivious to the fact that women figured importantly in making the city successful, makes the cut doubly painful.

Women should have the same position as their brothers, and there are a few long-headed men to-day who recognize the truth that women will vote in the near future.

But among certain men women are just as much of slaves as they were in olden days. These men are husbands, before whom women have to keep back their private opinions and not show their feelings. These same men would not allow women a public voice at all.

Women would not lose their dignity or femininity if they were allowed to vote. I stand for woman's rights, and my ancestors—lawyers and statesmen—believed in women being allowed to vote, and yet no woman in our family has ever been a no-called strong-minded individual, with masculine ways.

Any city is dependent upon its women for its business life, its home life and education.

She Says She Wants Full Credit for Feminine Industry and Enterprise.

The women readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN are invited to write on their opinions on this controversy for publication in these columns. The letters to the editor should be brief and to the point, in order that space may be found for all of them.

MRS. STUART HINTS FORGERY

The charge of forgery was implied by Mrs. Susan Stuart against her husband, Willoughby H. Stuart, formerly British consul at Boston, and now an inmate of the McLean Hospital at Waverly. Her testimony was given in a hearing before Arthur Lord, an auditor of the Probate Court, in suits brought by her against Andrew Chamberlain, for the recovery of $20,000 on a mortgage, and against the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company and the Boston Towboat Company for the return of stock which she says was transferred.

Mrs. Stuart is sued by the Newton Savings Bank and other prominent notes aggregating $20,000 made by her father, the late Josiah Wentworth, and which bear her indorsement.

"I never wrote those signatures," she said; "they were written by my husband." Asked if she did not consider the signatures forgeries when she first saw them, Mrs. Stuart replied: "I never gave it a thought."

The hearing is still in progress.

MELROSE HAS $5,000 FIRE

Covered with burning oil from an overturned gasoline stove, J. A. Hughes, tailor, of Myrtle street, Melrose, wrapped himself in folds of woolen cloth used for suitings, smothered the flames, and, still shrouded in the heavy folds of cloth, rushed into the street and mounted "Prince."

Hughes escaped with slight burns on hands and arms. The shop was gutted. The building is owned by Henry A. Leonard. Damage to building and shop, stock and fixtures makes a total of $5,000.

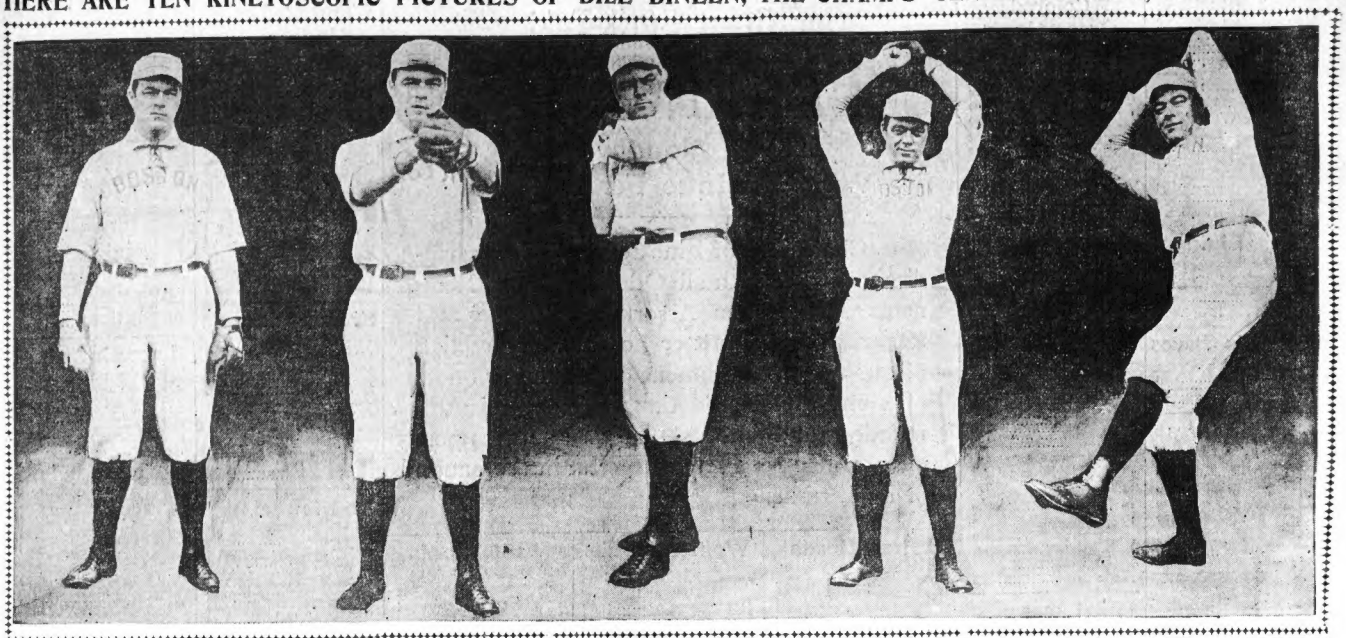
WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

HERE ARE TEN KINETOSCOPIC PICTURES OF BILL DINEEN, THE CHAMPS' CLEVER PITCHER, SHOWING HIM



ANACONDA IN FREE FOR ALL

Yesterday's races at "Old" Saugus were marked by splendid weather, cool breezes, a fine track and the defeat of not only a favorite, but an idol.

Jim Kyle, favorite in the 2:18 pacing class, was an easy winner in straight heats, best time 2:12¾, with Daniel Webster, second choice, in second place. In the 2:24 trotting class, Kitty Winns, the tip given by the BOSTON AMERICAN, won after losing the third heat to Bert S.; best time 2:17¼, in the fourth heat.

The good one to fall down was Ralph Wick. He lost the first heat to Lady K., who holds the track record, 2:12, made last October, in 2:15¾, and the second to Lake Queen in 2:14¾.

Merrie Page was then put up by the judges, but did not better the gelding's position, fifth place in the third and third position in the fourth in 2:14¾ and 2:13¾ was where the next driver landed him.

Lake Queen won. The judges decided that the horse had not been raced on the level and declared all bets on the result off.

For to-day's races there is, first, the free-for-all pacing class, with Anaconda, Royal R. Sheldon, Major Muscovite, The Bishop, Effie Powers and Peeler Patron the possible starters.

Anaconda on his record should win but, on the other hand, The Bishop has won a race on a half-mile track in as fast time as the snake horse has been a trial. Then old Effie Powers may have some of Muscovite, who is an nearly invincible horse in his class.

The 2:20 class for trotters has fourteen entries, and of these Jimmy Michael should head the list. The 2:25 class for pacers has thirty-eight entries, and will most likely be raced in two divisions.

The 2:15 pacing class has twenty-six entries, enough to make two races. Sally Hooker is the pick of the list on paper, but there are two or three of which fabulous stories are told.

There is promise of the best kind of sport and plenty of it.

"PIT" AGAINST KID NICHOLS

Special to the Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—Pittenger will most likely do the box work for the Bostons to-day, while Manager Kid Nichols is booked to appear on the rubber for the Cardinals. As this is the final game of the series, and the two star box men of either team are working, there should be some lively doings.

In the third game the Bostons were dragged down to defeat good and hard. The home nine walloped the visitors from the "city of culture" 9 to 2. There was only one session, the sixth, when the Bostons looked formidable, owing to hard work by Geier, Tenney and Batty which netted two runs.

On the other hand the Bostites could not connect with the benders of Joe Corbett, who returned to the game after a long absence. Wilhelm, the former Pirate, was on the line for the Bostons, but was hammered so hard he had to retire in favor of Fisher in the fourth, who held the home team at bay for the rest of the afternoon.

Manager Buckenberger is trying hard to locate a hard hitting fielder in this city.

LYON, TENNIS CHAMPION.

MAGNOLIA, July 20.—R. B. Vincent Lyon won the title of State tennis champion from Chauncey F. Seaver in five hard-fought sets. Although he has held the honors for two years, Seaver was clearly outclassed by Lyon. There was a brilliant gathering at the match.

BRYN MAWR WINS POLO.

CEDARHURST, L. I., July 20.—The Bryn Mawr polo team easily defeated the Rockaway Hunt team. The match was attended by a large gathering of society people. The semi-finals will be played to-day.

CHAMPS AND INDIANS PLAY BIG DOUBLE-HEADER TO-DAY

with confidence, now that he has lassoed Billy Lush, who has saved up a lot of corn-crackers to let loose for the benefit of his team-mates.

It will take a trio of Naffy pitchers to check the home crowd and Earl Moore was given a chance to work the opposition. Addie Joss and big Hess, the curly-haired, will divide honors in one of the battles if the fire alarm is rung in.

MAY SWAP MOORE FOR DAVE FULTZ

There is a well-defined rumor spreading its wings over a new baseball deal, which may soon come to pass. It is said on pretty reliable authority that the Clevelands are about to trade Earl Moore for Fultz of the Highlanders. One phase of the rumor also had Anderson as the party to be traded by the New Yorkers.

At any rate, the story bears all the earmarks of the truth. The Blues are direly in need of an outfielder, as shown by their appearances in this city. Owing to the absence of Lush, they have been obliged to alternate their pitchers in the outfield. Any fan with an ounce of sense knows that it is hard for a pitcher to go into the outer regions and put up a creditable article of ball.

This has been the plight in which the Indians have been for the past week. Manager Armour has had a man going through the New England League circuit on the lookout for some fast outfielder. The agent has not yet been able to report any success. He has said there is quite a lot of young outfielders in that league who show up rather strong with their own set, but he doesn't think they would do for major league company.

In other towns Manager Armour has sent out scouts to the Eastern leagues with the idea of rounding up some fast fielder. He has worried more over his inability to land a good player than he does over landing first place.

Earl Moore has not been pitching very good ball this season. He has not shown the grand form which he exhibited in all of his battles last season. However, he hasn't had very good luck. He has lost more games by one run than any pitcher on the team.

It is surprising to note how far Moore has gone back. Last season he was leading the American League. This year he is away down in standing of pitchers.

Earl Moore admits himself that it has been mentioned to him of their purpose to exchange him for some other player. He says he likes the Cleveland nine immensely and wouldn't like to quit them.

There is only one thing to do, if your manager wants to get rid of you. Take your medicine like a good fellow. A pitcher can get along as well with one team as another, and there is no need of kicking. I have heard of the proposition to trade me for over a month, and I am looking to find myself in new quarters at any moment.

All the Indians knew of the proposed trade of Moore. Even over in New York the rumor is quite current among the players. Falls believes it is his turn to quit the team. They do not think Anderson will be traded, as the Highlanders can put him on first base when needed.

The Blues were all pleased because of their success in yesterday's game. Bernhard said he never pitched a better game this season than yesterday. He was feeling in tip-top shape, and couldn't help lacing the sphere over the plate.

RUBE VICKERS O. K. AGAIN.

HOLYOKE, July 20.—The National committee's disbarment of Rube Vickers, the pitcher of the Holyoke baseball team of the Connecticut League, which was made Monday, has been raised. He was debarred for a debt of $205 to the Brooklyn club, and the local club has paid the amount. Vickers, who has been with the Burlington, Vt., club since his disbarment, has been notified to return to the Holyoke team.

YACHTS OFF ON CRUISE

Special to the Boston American.

PORTLAND, Me., July 20.—The fleets of the Eastern Yacht Club and the Boston Yacht Club continued their cruises this morning, sailing from Portland Harbor. They have been detained here since yesterday morning on account of the fog.

The Boston Y. C. fleet is bound for Five Islands, where races will be held to-morrow, while the Eastern Club boats are on their way to Isleboro, and from there go to Bar Harbor

WATERBOY IN RACE TODAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Glen Cove handicap, at six furlongs for three-year-olds, will keep the talent on tiptoe to-day. It will be a stirring contest and a strong betting race, too. Lady Amelia is making a start here after a nice rest, and according to all reports is the great little filly is just in the best kind of shape.

It may be well remembered that Dick Berrien was cut and brushed when he pulled on from his last race, as the result of being run down. He was not hurt in such a way as to have his speed dulled off, being cut in the body sores. He will come back to-day as good as ever. For the players who have been at a loss to understand the cause of his sudden stop in his last race, this explanation will suffice.

Waterboy and Broomstick are carded to go in the fifth event. Last night it was understood Waterboy would be retired for good and all if he failed to beat Broomstick. This will be worth a trip to the trackside alone. The track was fast yesterday and will be again to-day if rain holds off.

OLYMPIC TENNIS POSTPONED

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—At the request of many prominent tennis players the Olympic tourney, scheduled here for August 29, has been postponed till September 5. Easterners will play in the Newport and other contests, will then be able to get here in time.

MORAN LEADS THEM HOME

Jimmy Moran cut another notch in his climb to race, by beating the bunch in the twenty-five-mile open paced race at Charles River Park, and incidently he established a new world's record for the distance behind motors.

The big sailman got going at his regular express speed on the eleventh mile, and he smashed the time for the rest of the journey, the watches catching him in 34 minutes 13 1-5 seconds, which is eleven and two-fifth seconds better than the old mark, which he owned.

Nat Butler ran second to Moran, half a mile in his rear, and Louis Mettling pulled in behind, nearly a lap behind Butler, while Will Stinson, with a lulky motor, was as much distance back of the schoolboy. The riding of Mettling against the veteran Moran was a feature, as it took Jimmy twenty miles before he could put a leg on the little fellow, while he had done the trick to the Cambridge pair.

Stinson got away in the lead and looked to be riding well till Moran put on a spurt in the third mile, and ever after led the way.

Mettling passed Butler in the fourth mile and caught Stinson in the seventh.

At fifteen miles Moran went by Stinson for the second time, the pig Cambridge rider being shaken.

After passing the twenty-mile mark, Mettling got a little wobbly, and before he could steady down, Butler took second place away from him.

WRENN BOYS WON.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 20.—In the first day's play of the invitation tennis tourney here the Wrenn brothers beat Vletcher and Leonard in the doubles, 8, 8, 7. Vletcher is champion of the country. R. D. Lockwood won the championship last year.

CHAMP GOLF TOURNEY.

On the fine links of the Essex Country Club at Manchester, the championship tourney of the Massachusetts Golf Association will be held Thursday 3 to 8. The course is considered one of the best in the country. R. D. Lockwood won the championship last year.

LOCAL ROWING MEN OFF TO ST. LOUIS

New England will be well represented at both the National Regatta at St. Louis, which will be held July 29-30, and at the Canadian championships at Canada, which take place August 5. Most of the oarsmen will drop off at St. Catherines after leaving the Fair City. Boston will send a number of men to these championships, who no doubt will take care of the Hub laurels.

The delegation from New England will leave the North Station Saturday noon for St. Louis. Walter Stimpson has been coaching George Lloyd in the fine points of the rowing game, and he expects his protege will give a good account of himself.

was they who obtained the cheap rates for the oarsmen to St. Louis.

Clarence Johnson will participate in the association singles. Lloyd and young Ten Eyck will start in the intermediate singles, and Frank Greer will meet all comers in the championship singles. He is confident of pulling off all the honors. He also is sanguine of his success over Lou Scholes at St. Catherines. The latter recently won the Dominion Senile at Hurley in record time.

E. Newton Atherton, of Hartford, son of the well-known veteran oarsman, will also start at St. Louis. Walter Stimpson has been coaching George Lloyd in the fine points of the rowing game, and he expects his protege will give a good account of himself.

RED LEGS HAVE LOST THEIR NERVE

Special to the Boston American.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—All of the local fans, newspaper men and general followers of the doings of Diamondom, believe that the Reds will fall much lower in the league standing if they do not brace up. Their chief weakness at present is their not-aggressiveness. There was a time when the players would fight for a game until the last ditch. Now there are only two men on the team, Kelley and Kingfun, who seem to take much interest. Fred Odwell, the new left fielder, is also a hustler, and his whole heart seems to be in the game.

The fans are all wondering why the management did not use Odwell in the field sooner. He was warming the bench, until the got the show in left field, which was brought about by the suspension of Mike Donlin.

Odwell is a star hitter, and covers left field as well as any outfielder ever seen in this city. His work is equally well applied any player to "get on" to himself.

Most of the players on the Red team concede the pennant to the Giants, on account of their big lead and the fine condition of their star box artists, McGinnity and Mathewson. There are very few men on the Reds who are playing with the right spirit, and it is chiefly on this account they are losing their hold in the race.

Tom Walker and Jack Harper are the only two pitchers who are twirling their right game. Kellum twirled well earlier in the season, but has gone back. Every time he comes that "Noodles" Hahn is on in, while Ewing hasn't any head to pitch ball.

NOVEL WAR ON POOLROOM MEN

NEW YORK, July 20.—Inspector Brooks and his forty message-clad detectives held the upper hand at the Brighton Beach racetrack. There had been a report made to them that the Western Union disregarded commercial messags for the racing news which they supplied to the managers of the pool-rooms.

In order to see if this were a fact, they all lined up in the Western Union office, and kept sending messages, both by telegraph and 'phone, all afternoon. Over eight hundred messages were sent. The pool-room men were obliged to delay transacting their business on this account. As far as could be seen, all the messages were sent in their turn.

Between the Innings.

Paul Keith entertained several friends in a cozy corner of the big stand, and saw the long conflict through.

* * *

That Marlboro fan on the shady side of the grandstand, continuously and loudly punted his cry, which was: "What's the matter with Ewing?"

* * *

"There's the best catcher in the business," said an old fan when Piatt got under a foul that just nipped the edge of the roof over the players' bench, after a backhand run from his position.

* * *

Dr. Fred Murphy, the old Yale athlete, was interested spectator in proceedings perched in the front row where the talent holds sway.

* * *

President Jack Taylor was very liberal with a special brand of Havanas that were under contract to explode his the game did in the twelfth.

* * *

That was the kind of an o—ening that Ewing got in the ninth, when Schlei got under Elmer Flick on the bench at the fall by a beautiful catch of the high foul back.

* * *

Harry Bay had five successive put-outs at one stage, and retired the side in the ninth, some better for covering ground.

* * *

Hobe Ferris's brilliant practice came in handy in the ninth, as two balls caromed off Ferris' knees and Hobe cured them to the tune of 1-2.

* * *

Elmer Flick can't improve on his base stool record while tonight it on the waiting. Flinch threw one wide purposely, and Flick was called.

LOU DILLON'S FIRST TEST

CLEVELAND, July 20.—One week from Saturday it is intended to give Lou Dillon her first test of the season. Nineteen years ago Maud S. took her record on the Cleveland track of 2:08¾, and, presumably, Mr. Sanders will invite inspection of the sulky the little mare is to draw, and, if it be considered "regulation," the daughter of Sidney Dillon will proceed to cut a little into the record.

It is ever a hard task to assume, this going to lower a pet record, but the queen has the confidence of all, and seems nearly keyed up to start against any notch desired. A. C.

BIG BOUT FOR SLOWTOWN

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Fight fans are much pleased because the bout between Frankie Neil, the bantam champion, and Hughey McGovern will take place in this city. The contest was originally carded for Chicago, but Mayor Harrison's anti-boxing edict necessitated a change.

The boys' managers have agreed upon July 27 as the date for the six-round affair, which will take place at the National

FITZ AND O'BRIEN IN LOVE TAP BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—There seems to be a feeling on all sides of the local vale of Sportdom that the coming battle between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack O'Brien will be one of those "no there" affairs. Every fight fan has the idea lodged in his head, or the greater part of them have, that the fight is going to be purely scientific, with no fierce gruelling like has characterized some of the bouts which both fighters have appeared in.

The Plaske-McCoy and the McCoy-O'Brien bouts were really samples of how gentle the pugilist can be, if he is paid. The local enthusiasts would like nothing better than to see Bob battle for all there is in him, but they do not expect it in this scrap, somehow or other.

The friends of O'Brien are all feeling sore as O'Brien isn't getting much publicity. They say that Pitz is getting press yarns written around himself, about how to stake the lion and the like, and they wish that Jack had some agents in his camp that would make the lion story look like a sleeping lamb.

The club officials are receiving congratulations on all sides because of their victory over Mayor Weaver in getting the permit to hold the fight. There will be a large circle of cops at he fight, and the fans all expect they will prevent any rugged fighting.

WIND PETERED OUT.

Special to the Boston American.

MANCHESTER, July 20.—Owing to the light wind, the first club championship race of the Manchester Yacht Club was called off before the first leg had been finished. There were three classes, eighteen-foot knockabouts, handicap class for boats under fifteen feet and a special class for fifteen-footers.

SAVAGE REFUSED TO BOX.

PORTLAND, Me., July 20.—Because he said the house was too small for the trouble, Jesse Savage, of Bath, refused to fight Arthur Cote at the Pastime Club. They were carded to go ten rounds. Some of the local fans were cruel enough to say Savage feared to face Cote.

CHAMP JEFF IN SHAPE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—According to Jim Jeffries, there's no chance of another postponement of his bout with Jack Munroe, which is carded for Frisco on August 26.

The big fellow arrived to-day on his way to Harbin Springs, where he will resume training for the bout. He looks the picture of health—in fact, no one here ever saw him appear better. He is in excellent spirits, though just a bit "sore" over the many recent reports that he was afraid of the miner, and that his knee was an opportune excuse.

"I never felt better in my life," he said, "My sore knee has healed perfectly, and I see no reason why I should not be in the pink of condition by August 26. I will go to Harbin in a few days and enjoy a bit of hunting and rampling before settling down to hard work."

BARRY WHIPS HARRY FOLEY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—Dave Barry won from Harry Foley last night at Hazy Pavilion, putting the lanky one out in the seventh round. Foley was all in at the close of the sixth, being put down for eight counts and getting up just in time to run into another right clip to the chin that sent him to the mat for nine. He came and arose, but was slammed against the ropes, dazed and helpless when the bell rang.

Foley recuperated and came back for the seventh, fighting like a tiger, but Barry would not keep away a second and forced the fighting, going in close and swinging for the jaw. After one minute and twenty seconds he landed the third punch to the jaw and Foley fell on his back, completely out.

'CORBETT' TO WAIT FOR JIMMY BRITT

"Young Corbett" says he will not fight before the middle of December, when he hopes to have another try at "Jimmy" Britt before one of the California clubs. "Corbett" will spend a few weeks in Atlantic City, and will then go to Saratoga to take the waters, and at the same time look over the field in the betting. "Corbett" has had several offers to fight before the Chicago and Philadelphia clubs, but the inducements were hardly tempting enough to warrant his accepting the terms. One club offered him a guarantee of $1,500, win, lose or draw, to meet any man they would name. "Corbett" was about to accept, but when he figured it out that it would take not less than five weeks to fit him for a contest even at six rounds, and that his training expenses would easily foot up $1,500, he decided it would be a waste of time for him to accept the offer.

He says he would train for five weeks and fight for $1,500 if he was assured of another battle a few weeks later for a $2,500 or $3,000 purse, but his experiences, he says, have taught him that no reliance can be placed in club managers pulling off the contests when arranged.

"Corbett" says he would gladly jump at a match with "Terry" McGovern if some Philadelphia club made him a good offer, but he added that he thought "Terry" would not look with favor on another meeting with him.

"PIRATES OUT OF IT? NOT BY A JUGFUL," SAYS BARNEY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—Barney Dreyfuss hasn't yet given up hope of capturing the fourth consecutive pennant of the National League. He believes his team hasn't struck its proper gait, but when it does it will make it good and warm for the other members of the organization. Despite the mishaps which have visited the Champs, they still entertain the ambition of making it a foursome on the banner.

"Do I believe we are going to win the pennant," shot back Dreyfuss to a question asked him in regard to his chances of again pulling off the coveted banner. "If a man should fall from the top of the flattest building or any other tall structure I think his life would be saved if he should fall feet first, into a passing haycart.

That was all Dreyfuss would say in regard to the fortunes of his team. It is remarkable he should have so much hope, in the face of the crippled state of his team. The Pirates would have to win 85 per cent. of the rest of their games in order to win out, while the Giants only have to capture 60 per cent. of their remaining battles in order to retain first place.

There probably was never a nine in the country unluckier than the Pennsylvania aggregation at present. Most of its pitchers are out with injuries and the like. Catcher Phelps will not be able to play for several weeks, owing to a collision that happened to him in a recent game. Phelps's eyes are very sore, and the absolute loss of his sight is threatened. Captain Clarke is out of the game because of a serious illness. Tommy Leach is acting as manager in his place. Lever's arm shows signs of going entirely back on him. Every game he exhibited poorer form.

Mike Lynch has not yet been able to gain control of the spitter, and at times shows tendencies for airship flights. Pat Flaherty is really the only available pitcher. He seems to be the only man who can win games. With only one catcher and one pitcher on his staff, the confidence of Dreyfuss is estimable.

RHODE ISLAND BOY WON FAST BOUT

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 20.—Before a large crowd, which gathered in the Pavilion off Block Island, Hughey Glancey, Rhode Island's champion featherweight, knocked out Tommy Ryan, of Philadelphia, in a bout which was scheduled to go six rounds.

The mill was the fastest seen in this vicinity in a number of years. Both men were on their best mettle all through the first two or three rounds. After that period Glancey's body punching began to tell on Ryan. When he got Ryan just where he wanted him, Glancey sent the Slowville champ down and out.

There were a number of residents of the summer colony present, besides a good-sized delegation of sports, who came from points along the Sound. Glancey's showing was remarkable, considering that it was his first appearance in the ring since his recent illness.

BETS HE CAN DOWN BRITT

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Frankie Neil, the bantamweight champion of the world, who came into town Saturday night, fresh from his triumphs in Chicago, is after the biggest fish in the pond now. The little champion was seen yesterday while strolling down Broadway with his father and was asked about his plans for the coming few months.

"I'm here to meet McGovern," said Neil, as he twirled his cane; "that is, Hughey McGovern, and we are to box in Philadelphia.

"If there is any hitch in the go, why I will look around for the next best man among the bantams. Maybe Tommy Loveland he is a good card out here."

"Say," continued Frankie, taking a new lease on the talk, "I hear that Britt is going to fight now that Young Corbett is going to get busy again. I'd like to fight Britt or any boy in a six-round go. You know I used to box with him when we both worked at Croll's Gardens. No, I don't think he has anything on me.

"Yes, I'm giving away ten pounds weight, but if he will agree to weigh in at 6 o'clock and up the beam at 130 I'll get backing for $10,000 and we will put up a forfeit with the New York Journal just as soon as Britt says the word. There's a chance for him to make a little on the side walking for that "Corbett" fight in December."

Frankie is not a bit awelled over the idea of meeting Britt, but really feels that he can beat the plumber in a six-round go and is willing to bet his roll along with those of some friends who have the same idea as he has regarding that go.

BIKE SHARPS IN TOP FORM

It will be the slick goods aweel to-morrow night at the Revere circuit when Ringson, Butler and MacLean get down to business for their twenty-five-mile skip for the large end of the purse.

The two Cambridge speed makers are cutting out practice spins to-day on the track in fast time, while MacLean is in top form for the event.

Stinson has been troubled with poor motors when Butler has got any wins on him, but says he will have the best of pace in this race as he can secure it.

MacLean has a big proposition on his hands Saturday night when he get on with Jimmy Moran in their match race for twenty-five miles. He refrained from entering any open races in spite of being billed, as he is saving himself for Saturday night, as it is his ambition to beat Moran.

HUB HORSES WINNERS.

Boston horses carried off the honors at the Atlantic City horse show to-day, according to the advices received by Herbert T. Drake, superintendent of the W. L. Douglas stable. His own road and show horses took off first and second prizes in the gentlemen's roadster class, while the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Dorchester had things all its own way.

SCRAPPY PUGS IN STREET BATTLE

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, July 20.—One of the fiercest bare knuckle fights on record between professional pugilists took place on the sidewalk at the corner of Fortieth street and Seventh avenue. It was wholly impromptu, gotten up on the spur of the moment, between Kid Broad, the crack lightweight who has fought "Young Corbett," Dave Sullivan and all the top-notchers, and Kid Griffo, of Brooklyn, and lasted about ten minutes when the cops came.

The trouble started in a nearby cafe, run by a well known pugilistic manager, and grew out of a heated discussion between Griffo and Broad as to their respective abilities, both claiming the prior right to a fight with "Young Corbett," who was one o those present.

When he saw a fight was inevitable the proprietor put the whole party out of his place and they started towards Seventh avenue. It was hastily arranged that they "Young Corbett" thinkerupper and Frank Smith referee.

Just as they reached the corner, Griffo, without waiting for any word from the referee, smashed Broad a wicked swift over the left eye with his right and they were off. A dense crowd quickly gathered and formed a ring, inside of which the pair battered each other hammer and tongs.

Griffo to the Flagstones.

Inside of one minute both were bleeding in streams from bare knucle gashes over and under the eyes and from smashed lips. A terrific right wallop from Broad sent Griffo to the flagstones, but he bounced right up and a few seconds later he knocked Broad down clean with a crashing le fireing to the jaw.

In swift Young Corbett yelled time when the first two minutes was up. They were so busy trading each other up that they didn't hear him. Slam bang, biff and bobs and swings kept flying at a rapid clip.

Broad again extended Griffo wit home terrific left swing, and a moment later was again knocked down himself with a vicious right counter on the jaw. Broad was no more than on his feet than Griffo made a feint to smash over a right. Broad ducked to his own right and came kersmash into a forty-mule-power left upper cut that closed his right eye up tight.

Small Sized Riot.

Now the crowd rushed from Broadway, Seventh avenue and all the side streets, causing a small sized riot.

Someone had, apparently, telephoned the Tenderloin Police Station, for when the men had been fighting ten and a half minutes, according to "Young Corbett's" watch, the patrol wagon clattered up loaded with cops.

An immediate stampede followed. Men fell all over each other i nthe wild jumble to dodge the swings from the clubs of the cops. Griffo and Broad got away. In fact, no one was arreested, and the patrol wagon returned with a load of cops who felt like goats.

Broa dand Griffo were both seen later in differal cafes. Each was frightfully cut up about the face and neither could barely see, as swollen were their eyes.

CHASE BEAT GODFREY.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 20.—Playing in the State tennis tourney is rapidly progressing. Already the first round has been finished, while they are well advanced in the second. Malcolm Chace won a hard match from C. E. Godfrey, and J. G. Ames worked earnestly for his victory over G. C. Huckley.

FOG STOPPED BIG CRUISE

Special to the Boston American.

PORTLAND, Me., July 20.—By to-morrow morning, it is expected that the boats which are sailing on the cruise of the Eastern Yacht Club will have arrived safely in the harbor of Islesboro. The start today will be made off Witch Rock Buoy, and the yachts will finish off the bell buoy of Whitehead at the entrance to Muscle Ridge Channel.

The boats did not take the fourth day of their run from Peaks Island to Boothbay, as the fog hadn't lifted away past noon, and the committee in charge decided to remain here. The Katonah, which had been the only boat not accounted for, came in late at night. She anchored in the upper harbor.

CHICK AFTER FAST GAME

Chick Monohan, the fast Brockton lightweight, is looking for the scalp of some of the high steppers in his class.

He will be at the BOSTON AMERICAN Friday, at 8 o'clock, and any scrapper in his grade can get on a match.

He would like to meet Sam Langford before some local club, and is willing to give away a few pounds, in fact, Chick does this right along, but gets the decisions. He has put those clever boys, Jack Dyer and Jack Riley, to rout in recent bouts.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 20.—The Chase Pully Company has just launched what is claimed to be the fastest and most beautiful auto-boat afloat. C. F. Herreshoff, 2d, has designed every detail of the craft —hull, engine, furnishings—and has called her the Vision.

The new flyer is forty feet long, thirty-seven feet six inches water line, four feet beams and only eight inches draught. Mr. Herreshoff says modestly that he expects her to make at least twenty-four miles an hour.

HARVARD IN TOURNEY.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 20.—Among the players who have arrived for the New York State championship tennis tourney, which is now progressing on the Sedgwick courts, are Irving Wright, of Dorchester, Mass.; L. H. Waidner, of Chicago; Leonard, of the Harvard team, and Cole and Lewis, of the Yale team.

Amateur Games Wanted.

Winter Hills, of Somerville, want a game away from home for next Saturday. A. R. Crane, 47 Webster, Somerville.

Maplewood A. A. want a game for next Saturday. E. Thayer, 5 Everett Court, Revere.

Brook Associates would like to hitch up with any semi-professional teams around Boston. Thelis Meteer team preferred. John McCabe, No. 69 Brook st., East Boston.

The Coughlins, of South Boston, want games with fourteen-year-old teams. They have McCarty and Cole as their star battery. John McGann, 1 James avenue, South Boston.

One of the readers requests that Phelps, Sigfried Holland is the twelve of the Bennett A. A., and this fan is anxious to locate him.

Somerset A. C. challenges the M. J. Curleys, of South Boston, for the championship of the State. Would like it so that the game could be played on Aug. 27 or Sept. 2.

Any team desiring a good all-around man should address 106 Summer street, room 3.

The Rock A. A. want games with any thirteen-sweeteen-year-old teams. W. Timmins, 44 Danforth street, Jamaica Plain.

BROWN FOR CARDINALS.

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—Brown, the winning pitcher of the Western League, has been bought by the St. Louis National League Club. He won't leave the Omaha team, however, till the end of the season.

Boston American Woman's Home Magazine

By Mrs. Osborn

THE FAMOUS DESIGNER OF GOWNS FOR THE "200" OF NEWPORT AND THE "400" OF NEW YORK DEVISED THESE PRETTY SUMMER FROCKS AND DESCRIBES THEM SPECIALLY FOR THE READERS OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S WOMAN'S PAGE.

Frock of White Dotted Swiss.

THE Summer of '04 should be a very satisfactory one to women as far as their clothes go. One can dress in almost any style one pleases and still be up-to-date. There are elaborate lace and chiffon, duffy and bewildering, and there are simple wash muslins and silks. For those who go in for "sweet simplicity" nothing could be prettier than this little frock of white dotted swiss. The skirt is long and plain and quite full, the gathers being scattered on the hips. The waist has a round neck, finished by a shaped ruffle of fine embroidery, and the sleeves consist of two ruffles. A girdle of turquoise panne velvet gives a charming touch of color. The champagne colored canvas suit is exceedingly smart and not at all expensive. The skirt is full and stretched in fine cry or lace looks well with this. Let together by frogs and tassels of silk tassels. The charm in these tucks over the hips. The coat, which us be thankful that pongee is as pongee colored silk. The sleeves are gowns is that every one of them can is popular as ever. Nothing makes be reproduced by the home dress trimmed with stretched bands of can- inverted pleat down the front, held green velvet ribbon ending in green

Champagne-Colored Canvas Suit.

Pongee House Dress.

By Ella Wheeler WILCOX

THE NOTED AUTHORESS PLEADS THAT THE NEGRO BE JUDGED AS THE WHITE MAN IS JUDGED.

Copyright, 1904, by American-Journal-Examiner.

TWO women have occupied the public eye recently, one a white woman suspected of murder, the other a colored woman accused of blackmail.

The white woman accepted the attentions of a married man, and premitted him to become infatuated with her. She refused to allow him to go back to his wife when he expressed a desire to do so.

She visited saloons with him, indulged in drink, and, alone with her, the man was either killed or committed suicide.

The colored woman accepted the attentions of an old man, a widower with money, who wished to lavish it upon her. She became the mother of a child, without the sanction of court or church. She is accused of extorting money from him, after he began to tire of his association.

The white woman was given a fair start in life. She had respectable parents and such advantages as fall to the lot of hundreds of American girls who make the warp and woof of our society to-day. But she lost the ideals of womanhood, which must have been given her in early life. We are all sorry for her. Yet we cannot help realizing that she invited her own troubles by encouraging the infatuation of a married man. There is always a beginning to such infatuation and always a time when a woman with brain and with a desire to be decent can hinder a man from becoming a slave to his passions, when such slavery means sin for him and sorrow for others.

Of the two the colored woman deserves the greater pity.

Here is an ignorant woman of mixed bloods and unfortunate early surroundings, who has been the object of an old man's admiration for a period of years, and as a result has lost what little mental balance she possessed.

She has been mercenary and immoral, and she has paid the penalty and been brought to the level from which she started. But why heap upon her poor, untutored head all the blame, which should surely be shared by the well educated white man, who first made the present situation possible to Mrs. Elias?

How many of the mob who followed this wretched woman to the station house with jeers and insults would have bestowed the same mark of disapproval upon him had he been in evidence?

Not many months ago I passed some weeks under the same roof where a beautiful octoroon was engaged in a self-supporting occupation. The young woman was a wife and a mother, devoted to her husband and children.

The woman's business was one which brought her in contact with all white classes and both sexes. And the attitude which more than half the men, whether married or single, took toward her, until forced to understand her absolute respectability, was far from complimentary to the white men, while her own dignity of deportment led an observer to respect and admire her.

In our condemnation of such women as Mrs. Elias we must not be guilty of race prejudice or forget that the white blood first became mixed with the black in thievosunry through the immorality of white men.

Is it to be wondered at, if the offspring of ignorant black mothers and immoral white fathers possess limited ideas of right and wrong? But the matter which does call for surprise is that men who have had every advantage which blood and breeding can bestow and men with families and positions to maintain can deliberately seek and pay court to such unfortunates as Mrs. Elias.

When one stops to consider the whole subject dispassionately, it is remarkable to think of the advance of the colored race toward desirable goals in the land to-day, with all the handicaps and disadvantages they have been obliged to face.

Instead of taking such a woman as Mrs. Elias as a type, and such a man as the slayer of Mr. Green as another, let us remember Booker T. Washington and a score of his assistants: Mary Church Terrill, the gifted writer and lecturer; Florence Wilson, the sculptress; Mrs. Green, the philanthropist, and countless others of the colored race who are doing all in their power to elevate and instruct their own race.

There is a magazine called the "Colored People's Magazine," published and contributed to by colored writers only.

Graduates of the colored high school at Washington are filling responsible places all over the United States.

Such facts as these should be taken into consideration when we condemn the conduct of Mrs. Elias.

If Mrs. Elias has been guilty of blackmail let her be punished. But the women who followed her through the streets with insults and jeers would find better employment staying at home and trying to rear sons who could not descend to amours with colored women and who would not violate their marriage vows to become the slave of an adventuress of any color.

Advice to the LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

FEREWITH are printed answers by Beatrice Fairfax to some of those whose heart problems are so puzzling that they have come to her for advice. Letters to Miss Fairfax from women and men, maidens and youths are welcome. They will receive sympathetic attention and will be printed with accompanying answers on the Woman's Page of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some time ago I met a young gentleman who was very nice to me. He asked me if he could call, and I, being but seventeen years old, answered "no," that my people would not like it, but I would meet him outside quite often.

I have been going with him in this manner since last November. Christmas he presented me with a gold watch and chain, likewise that young ladies must not receive presents of jewelry from gentlemen unless they were engaged. I sent them back.

I have never had any word from him since, but we have met once or twice and have spoken in a manner as though we were just acquaintances.

Now, dear Miss Fairfax, kindly advise me as to what I ought to do, as I would like to renew this acquaintance with this young man, having knowledge of his character, which is good—salary also. He is two years my senior, and, in my mind, is a suitable companion for me. B. F.

YOU were in the wrong in the first place by not allowing the young man to call on you at home. If he is nice then surely your parents would prefer your receiving him at home to your meeting him on the street. That is not a nice thing for any girl who respects herself to do. You were quite right in returning the jewelry. There is only one right way for you to renew your acquaintance with him, and that is, gain your parents' consent to his calling on you. Then invite him to your home.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I shall feel grateful to you if you will kindly answer this letter through the BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am twenty-five years of age, and have been keeping company for nine months with a young lady two years my junior. My salary is sixteen dollars a week, and I have enough money for furniture and marriage expenses. I love the girl dearly, and she says that she loves me, but wants me to wait two or three years more, until I have more money saved. She has more money than I have. I am willing to wait, but do not believe in keeping company two or three years more, while my lady friend wishes to keep steady company. GEO. W.

I THINK if I were you I would keep on urging her to get married. You are both old enough to know your own minds, and if you have enough money to support a wife you will be much happier married. I am sure you can convince her if she cares for you.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a boy of sixteen years, and am wildly in love with a young girl who is about one year younger than myself. She is also in love with me. I have found this out from certain incidents which have lately happened. She is one year below me in school, and yet I feel her superior in tastes and manners to myself. Now, the strange part of it all is that we have never yet spoken to each other. Each has waited for the other to come forward. I have hesitated to do this because she comes from a richer family than I, and I am by nature fearful in the presence of good, pure girls such as she. But I can act like this no longer. I feel that something must be done. Will you kindly give me some advice, through the columns of the AMERICAN, and by so doing greatly oblige A CONSTANT READER.

Worcester.

IF you go to the same school, and see so much of each other, why do you not arrange for some mutual friend to introduce you? But when you do meet her, you must not let her know that you have heard how much she cares for you. You may have been deceived by some well-meaning friend, so you had better go about winning her esteem in the usual way.

Women's Letters From Woman's Page Readers

SOLDIERS ADMIRE MRS. WILCOX.

Editor Woman's Page, BOSTON AMERICAN:

Having read the short biographical sketch of Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, published on the Woman's Page of the BOSTON AMERICAN, I voice the sentiments of many boys in blue, who eagerly read the writings and philosophical reflections of this talented woman, in indorsing in toto the praise of this American lady that has emanted from the pen of a bright school girl.

Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox has no greater admirers nor more ardent students of her views than the boys in blue, and should any civilian visit a United States army squad room any evening he will find many a soldier boy reclining on his bunk after a more or less hard day's fatigue or guard duty, intently perusing the BOSTON AMERICAN'S page on which her writings appear.

The boys in blue present their respects to Mrs. Ella Wilcox and wish her a long and happy life. SOLDIER.

AMAZED BY SIGHTS AT THE BEACH

Editor Woman's Page, BOSTON AMERICAN:

I recently spent a few days at Salisbury Beach, and was much amazed by the love making publicly indulged in there. Girls of sixteen or seventeen seem to be seen on the beach in company with men in a way that seemed to me very improper, and there were hundreds of people looking on. I was told that I must not be surprised at anything I saw there. A young man was taking snapshots of some of the couples, and when I protested he said that if the girls did not respect themselves they could not expect others to respect them. He said that the girls were mostly Summer school teachers and daughters of respectable parents. Girls so young should not be allowed to go to such a place unless suitably accompanied, and such promiscuous love making should certainly be stopped, if only for the sake of hundreds of school children spending their vacations there.

HIGH CAR STEPS SHOULD GO.

Editor Woman's Page, BOSTON AMERICAN:

As disagreeable as the subject of the "end seat hog" has been, I saw from a very recent paper that it was still in the minds of the people. Really, one cannot avoid blaming the inconvenience of the West End car monopoly in giving the public the old-fashioned cars (one in use when every other enlightened city has platforms with moderate steps at the ends for people to enter and leave the cars instead of bolating one's self sideways, or as best they can, without having anything higher than themselves to assist them, the steps being so very far from the ground that only an expert gymnast can give the spring necessary.

Why should not the West End Company be required to furnish stepladders if they insist on the needlessly high steps?

Boston. HELOISE.

WOMEN AND THE END SEAT.

Editor Woman's Page, BOSTON AMERICAN:

As long as the argument regarding the end seat hog was dealt with by men alone I had no desire to call attention to the absolute selfishness of such persons. A "Sybil" has taken her axe in hand I see this to say: End seat or no end seat, in fact in any old seat, did any reader of the BOSTON AMERICAN ever see a woman budge an inch unless with a son or sweetheart, and an expression of—"Brute, can't you see I want all the room I have." They won't, however, move for man, woman or child, unless the conductor asks them to. And it's from this source that the ignorant citizen who chooses the end seat gets a savage criticism.

Boston. END SEAT HOG.

Marguerite Lindsley

Boston American Short Story

By Celeste Bennett Dobbins

"FRANK, are you sure that I am the only girl you ever loved?" There was a look of doubt on Beasie's pretty face.

"Perfectly sure. Why do you ask such a question, sweetheart?"

"I do not doubt you, Frank, but I wish you would tell me who Marguerite Lindsley is and where she lives?"

Frank Stanley's head fell guiltily as, to gain time before answering, he asked: "Why, Beasie, darling, where did you ever hear anything about Marguerite Lindsley?"

"I helped Helen put your den in order yesterday, and picked up a scrap of paper with that name written all over it. I know that a man would not write a girl's name more than a dozen times on one piece of paper unless he thought a great deal of her," said Beasie, with a pout.

When Frank Stanley learned the source and extent of his sweetheart's knowledge he breathed a sign of relief, and at once began to tease, without gratifying her curiosity.

"I cannot tell you who the fair Marguerite is just yet, but will try to describe her, and will confess that I think so much of her that I cannot get the young woman out of my mind when I want to attend to more serious business. Marguerite has deep blue eyes, like yours, Beasie, and she is so much like you that I cannot but love her, but not as I do you, sweetheart!"

Going into the den, as Frank's smoking room was called, he took the letters he had written and, with a good-bye kiss and a laughing warning to Beasie not to hunt around for stray papers, started for the train already due. In his perfect confidence of Beasie's love, Frank never dreamed that he had raised a storm of bitter feeling in the girl's heart against the unknown girl. The more she thought of it the more she felt outraged, and she made up her mind that she would find out all about it, by fair means or otherwise, before she would step another day in his sister's home. Beasie and Frank's sister had been schoolmates, and they had never given up the intimate friendship, although Helen was married, and had a home of her own.

Soon after Frank left for his office in the city, Helen started out to do the shopping for the home, and Beasie remained at home to write some letters. Going into the library, Frank's den, she found his desk locked for the first time. He had always told her to use it, and there could be but one reason why he had turned the key against her this morning. In her jealous anger she was about to leave the room when she thought of the love-letter Frank always wrote to her and left on top of the desk. Yes, it was there. She did not like it this time, as before—she felt too bitter for that— but she opened it and began to read:

"Marguerite, My Own Beautiful Darling:

"Why, oh why, are you so cruel to me? The false life we lead is harder to bear because I know how unhappy you are situated. Will you not listen to my plea, to break the chains which keep us apart, and come to me? You know that my whole heart—love, my very soul—belongs to you alone. I have never loved any one but you, my precious Marguerite. Come, and believe me, through all eternity, ever

"Your Devoted Lover."

The letter was not signed, but there was no doubt about who the writer was. The fates had been unkind to Frank Stanley that day. He had evidently put the letter intended for Beasie in the wrong envelope. What of the other girl?

Poor, pretty, little Beasie. She had given her whole heart to the man who had thus betrayed it.

A letter received by Helen three days later read:

"Dear Helen: If your brother has told you why I could no consent with self-respect to be your friend, although we may never meet. With love, sincerely yours,

"Beasie."

Mrs. Van Allen was giving one of her delightful entertainments at her residence in Fifth avenue. She was talking with Colonel Gregg, and had just said: "I am very sure that two of my young friends who will be here to-night will like each other. Beasie Townsend, who has just returned from abroad, and——"

"Who is talking about us?" asked that young lady, as she entered the door in time to hear her name.

"I was telling Colonel Gregg that you had returned from Europe, and also that I was to have the pleasure of entertaining an author whose first book has made him famous. I mean to introduce him to you soon after he arrives, for I am positive you will be friends at once."

"We probably will hate each other; but who is your celebrated author and what has he written?"

"His name is Rossiter Stanley—and his book is called 'Marguerite Lindsley.' He is from the West and is staying with us for a few days."

"Let me help you," said the Colonel, as Beasie, nervously rolling with her bracelet, broke the frail clasp and let it fall.

"If you do not care, Mrs. Van Allen, I will go into the children's music room and try the song I promised you this evening. No, you cannot come, Colonel." And, slipping quietly through the door, Beasie sought the little music room where her friend's children practised their lessons.

Poor Beasie! She longed to be alone with her terrible heartache. She saw it all now —the mistake she had made; all that she had lost. "How, oh how, could she meet him!" Involuntarily she began to sing one of the songs Frank liked best. Some one passed through the hall, the footsteps ceased and the shadow of a man in evening dress darkened the doorway. Beasie looked up with a pleading cry, "Frank, Frank, forgive me; I did not know; I thought——"

But she never had the chance to tell what she had thought, for two strong arms were around her and the heart that had longed for her was too full of joy to care, now that he knew that she was all his own.

Mrs. Van Allen was cheated out of her chance to make the match of the season, for Beasie's love, although we may never remain under the same roof with him, you will forgive the way in which I left you. I sail on the next steamer, and write to tell you that I shall never forget nor cease

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE.

This is a Munich artist's conception of the future administration of justice, if women keep on "improving" at the present rate.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN

Ladies' Fancy Collars

This is the time of year when accessories take up the attention. Most of the important dresses and waists are finished at the neck with a few extra lace collars to give them a new appearance. A gown that is not quite fashionable in cut or color may be made so by these pretty little collars that are now the rage.

It is in these little touches that are so significant of fashion that makes women smart other women. The collars may be in high or open neck and may be used as the bertha for a dress. If one desires that style. They are quite the correct thing, and may be made of material trimmed with val insertion and lace, or of all-over lace insertion.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN will mail a pattern of the above on receipt of 10 cents to cover all cost of handling, etc.

All orders should be directed to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., 5 to 9 Winthrop Square, Boston.

Kindly write name and address plainly. Bust measure, medium and large.

FIGURING STROKE OF ONE AND HEIGHT OF SUN, NEW ENGLAND ON THE VERGE OF BECOMING CLOCK MAD

Thousands of Answers Flood the Clock Problem Editor From All Directions.

Solutions in Great Variety; Some Are Right; a Great Many Are Wrong.

(With apologies to Mother Goose.)

Hickory, dickory, dock!
The man wound up the clock.
The clock struck one,
Where was the sun?
What time of day by the clock?
A diller, a dollar.
A 10 o'clock scholar,
What makes you come so late?
He figured the sun
When the clock struck one,
Till he wore a hole through his slate.

ONE thing is certain—when the old clock struck one it made a hit. All New England heard it. And all New England has been figuring ever since.

Another thing is certain—some one has solved the problem. It could not be otherwise. The thousands on thousands of answers that have flooded the Clock Problem Editor have covered every hour of day and night from cockcrow to sunset and from curfew to dawn. Not an hour of day or night has escaped in the round-up.

Every solver is sure, dear sir, he's right. Hundreds have brought it over and taken a second guess. Diagrams, tables and affidavits have proven hundreds right, they think.

Lest New England go clock mad, the Clock Problem Editor has decided to end the suspense. Thousands are awaiting the announcement of the answer. And the heart of the Problem Editor has melted in pity.

The true solution to the problem and the only solution will be announced in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

And meanwhile send in your final answer. Have the satisfaction of knowing you are right—or wrong.

Here is another installment of letters received from BOSTON AMERICAN readers:

HAS IT EXACTLY.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
The fact that the clock was wound up at 7:20 regulated it so it struck 1 at exactly 1 a. m. December 26. The sun was out up.
No. 22 Sagamore avenue, Chelsea. FRANK DEANS.

9 P. M. IN CAMBRIDGE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
At 7 a. m. the clock was four hours ahead on its striking. If the striking was not corrected when it was wound up at 7:30 p. m. the next time it struck 1 it was 9 p. m. December 26, and the sun was not up.
CAMBRIDGE. GEORGE A. KELLER.

JUST TEN HOURS LATER.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
If the clock struck 11 with the hands indicating 7, then it would strike 3 four hours later with the hands indicating 11. Now, if being started in this condition at 7:30 p. m. December 25, having four strikes to wait, it would strike 1 ten hours later, at 5:30 a. m. December 26, and not 1 o'clock, as indicated by the hands.
No. 174 Essex street, Salem. W. G. BENNETT.

SOUTH BOSTON SAYS 1.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
I think the time the clock struck 1 was 1 o'clock on the morning of December 26, and it wasn't time for the sun to be up. And again I think the strike once at 9 o'clock on the evening of the 25th.
048 8th street, So. Boston. ARTHUR HANNAH.

SURE 9 O'CLOCK, HE SAYS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
If the old clock struck 11 while the hands were pointing to 7, and struck three having run down, and being wound up and started with hands exactly at 7:30, the next time it struck 1 it was surely 9 o'clock. There were no 6's or 7's omitted.
18 Peckham avenue, Brockton. F. VERMETTE.

FIGURES TWO WAYS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
At 7 o'clock the clock struck 11; that makes the clock four hours fast. At 11 the clock would strike 8, and that was the time it stopped.
When it started again at half past seven the clock was four a half hours fast, consequently when the clock would strike 1 it would be 6 o'clock, or 6 hours and a half ahead of the sun to be up. So the clock strikes half-hourly it would be 6:30 when it struck 1.
MRS. A. WYLLESTED.
13 Clarke street, Providence.

SAYS 3:30 IN MORN.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
When your old clock struck 1 the sun was not up; it was half-past three in the morning.
MRS. JULIA BASSETT.
Manchester, N. H.

HOPES HE'S RIGHT.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
I guess the clock struck about 9 o'clock in the evening of December 25. The sun wasn't up. Hope I am right. J. A. P.
No. 49 Brook avenue, Roxbury.

KEPT HIM AWAKE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Your old clock kept me from my sleep till the sun appeared, so I just gave it a little careful study and this is the conclusion I came to:
The old thing stopped at 8, and when you wound it up at 7:30 it struck 1; this was half-past three. As for the sun being up, I never read any account of its shirking its spurs.
WILLIAM MASON.
No. 60 Thomas avenue, Pawtucket.

OLD SUN FAST ASLEEP.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
If the old clock was's fine time keeper, as you say, when the clock was wound up and started again at 7:30 to tie evening, the next time it struck 1 was 5 o'clock, according to the clock. The sun was fast asleep.
No. 10 Arlington street, Haverhill. HENRY PETERS.

ITS REPUTATION AT STAKE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Your good old clock, to keep up its reputation as a fine timekeeper, must have struck 1 at exactly 7:30 p. m., December 25, 1903, and the sun was up in the land where the old clock was not striking.
Portsmouth, N. H. SAMUEL J. SHOLLOW.

HOW IT WAS IN PORTLAND.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
The clock struck 1 at 8 o'clock in the evening with the hands pointed at 11:30, and it was not time for the sun to be up.
No. 1 King's Court, Portland, Me. THOMAS H. AMBROSE.

FIGURES TO PROVE IT.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
My solution to your clock problem is as follows:
At 7 o'clock the clock struck 11.
At 8 o'clock the clock struck 8.
At 9 o'clock the clock struck 1.
At 10 o'clock the clock struck 2.
At 11 o'clock the clock struck 3.
At 12 o'clock the clock struck 4.
At 1 o'clock the clock struck 5.
At 2 o'clock the clock struck 6.
At 3 o'clock the clock struck 7.
At 4 o'clock the clock struck 8.
At 5 o'clock the clock struck 9.
At 6 o'clock the clock struck 10.
At 7 o'clock the clock struck 11.
At 8 o'clock the clock struck 12.
At 9 o'clock the clock struck 1.
The answer is 9 a. m., December 26, 1903, and sun was up.
No. 156 Main st., Milford. C. L. BARNARD.

THE CORRECT ANSWER?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Correct answer to the clock problem: On December 25 clock strikes 11 while hands point to 7; when it strikes 3 it stops, the hands pointing to 11. It is wound up and started at 7:30, December 25, but the clock still indicates 11 o'clock a. m. December 25, but correct time will be 5:30 a. m. December 26. Sun not up in New England.
Glen Ease, Methuen. SAMUEL WILD.

RAN TEN HOURS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Clock struck 11, hands point at 7, making four hours behind in striking. Time and indication of hands. Clock struck 3 and ran 10 hours behind in striking. Clock wound up and started at 7:30; from 7:30 to 1:30 a. m., the time it takes for clock to strike one; that is, as it struck 3 the last time before running down. The clock ran ten hours before it struck 1. The sun was not up.
No. 11 Public street, Providence. L. KELLEY.

THINKS IT 5:30 A. M.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
The answer to your clock problem is 5:30 December 26, 1903, sun not up.
22 Madison street, Malden, Mass. WILLIAM ENGLIS.

WORSE THAN EVER.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
In answer to your clock puzzle: First, it says the clock struck 11 while the hands pointed to 7. Then it states the clock struck 3, having run down. Now go from there. The clock struck 1 when the hands pointed to 7 and it struck 3. This is the time it takes to run to know it is was time for the sun to be up.
The next time the clock struck 1 it was 1 o'clock on the morning of December 26, 1903, and the sun was not up in Massachusetts.
Prairie avenue, Pawtucket, R. I. GUESS.

NOT UP IN ATTLEBORO.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
I have been very much interested in your clock problems, and my solution is that as clock being wound up and started at 7:30, the hands were placed at right time, and the clock struck 3:30. The balloon struck stated that the clock struck 3:30. If it struck 3:30 it struck 7 the last time. The next time it struck was at 1 a. m. December 26, and sun was not up in Attleboro.
No. 30 Dunham street, Attleboro. A. E. CONWAY.

WAS TIME TO RISE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
When the clock struck 1 it was 4 o'clock and it was time for the sun to rise. ULYSSES DANE.
No. 70 Fairmount avenue, Providence.

8:30 P. M. IN WHITMAN.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
When the clock struck 3 the hands were at 11. The next time it struck 1 it was 12 o'clock by the clock and 8:30 p. m. December 25, 1903, by the sun at Whitman. No sun. JAMES C. WOOD.
No. 67 Temple street, Whitman.

SAYS SHE NEEDS REPAIRS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
The answer to your clock problem is 9 a. m. December 25. I guess the regulator was out. The sun was not long set. JAMES CAMPBELL.
Clinton.

MAKES A DISCOVERY.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
When I first saw the puzzle I thought it was hard, but have since found it was easy. The clock struck 1 at 7 o'clock, the hands pointed at 9, and the correct time by my watch would be 5:30, in the morning. The sun would still be asleep in Boston.
FREEMAN GRANT.
No. 74 Union street, Everett.

AT 5 IN THE MORNING.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
December 26, at 5 in the morning the clock struck 1 time and should have struck 5 times before it rises.
No. 11 Austin street, Hyde Park, Mass. F. E. HIBBARD.

SUN AND HE IN BED.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
At 8 o'clock on the morning (December 26), your clock struck 1. He is getting out of this. Sun was in bed, and was I.
R. E.
Ruggles street.

STRUCK AT 1 A. M.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
I say it was just 1 a. m., and too soon (December 26, 1903) for the sun to be up.
No. 75 Franklin street, Chelsea, Mass. S. J. PETERS.

RIGHT OFF QUICK.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
I would say that in all probability the clock attendant, when he set the clock going, was was enough to have it right, therefore it struck 1 while he was working on it, 7:30 P. M.
ROGER MACINTOSH.
West Roxbury.

DOWNEY WEDS DESPITE WIDOW

Special to the Boston American.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 20.—Michael R. Downey, of Providence, against whom Mrs. Mollie Fuller, a widow, of Bristol, formerly of Lynn, has brought suit in $25,000 for breach of promise, is now married to Miss Elizabeth Gertrude Donovan, of this city, in spite of Mrs. Fuller's suit.

It was said when Mr. Downey took out his marriage license at City Hall yesterday, that he gave out that he was to marry Miss Donovan to-morrow, but they were married in St. Joseph's rectory at 5 o'clock on the afternoon the license was taken out. They escaped the observation of many people who have been greatly interested in the breach of promise suit, and who would probably have tried to see the couple when they were married.

Mrs. Fuller alleges in her bill of complaint that Mr. Downey promised, after his first wife died, that he would marry her. Mr. Downey denies this. Both he and his lawyer said they would fight the case.

Their friends say they were to have been married last week, and had plans made for a honeymoon trip abroad.

The Indians Dancing Farewell, and the Women in Barbed Wire Enclosures

Plus Some Remarks Entitled, "How the Government Ruins the Farmers"

A few of the old American families, the original aristocrats of the continent, are about to be driven off the Rosebud Indian reservation. The Government has taken the land on some kind of a bargain which the Indians had to accept. The land is to be given to the white settlers who first apply for it.

It is a good thing in the long run—Indians cannot improve in civilization, white men can—the laws of progress, which are not sentimental, push the Indian out and let the white man in, and in the process there are interesting features in that great rush for the free land at Bonesteel.

The Indians, almost naked, smeared with paint, howling and whooping, squatting down and jumping up in the air, display their savagery in what they call a farewell dance.

The whites display THEIR savagery quite as interestingly. The strong men crowd out the weak and THE UNMARRIED WOMEN ARE KEPT IN BARBED WIRE ENCLOSURES FOR SAFETY.

If we heard that the squaws of the Indians were kept in barbed wire enclosures to protect them against the people of their own tribe, we should think they were very savage indeed.

There is one thing about this frequently growing opening up of Government lands which is really very important and which has probably escaped the attention of a great many readers. That is the feature of Government competition with farmers.

Whenever it is suggested that the Government ought to establish its own railroads or its own telegraph companies, you hear loud protests against the crime of COMPETING with VESTED INTERESTS.

People would think it an outrage if the Government should build a cheap competing railroad along the line of the New York Central, or establish a competing express service within the territory pre-empted by one of the great express companies.

Have you ever thought that the Government has constantly competed with the FARMER of the United States in the most destructive, wholesale fashion?

WHY are there so many abandoned farms in the East?

WHY are so many Eastern farmers unable to make a living, driven to seek their fortunes in the West, taking their families and their hopes with them?

IT IS BECAUSE THE GOVERNMENT HAS SUBJECTED THE UNORGANIZED FARMER TO MERCILESS GOVERNMENT COMPETITION.

The farmer in the Eastern States invests his capital in land at one hundred dollars or more an acre; he wants to raise wheat, but the land, having been used for a long time, requires constant supplies of fertilizer. All that is very expensive.

Just as the Eastern farmer begins to think that he has a chance to make a living, the Government gives away a million or five million acres of land in the West, infinitely better than his land.

The Western farmer, or the Eastern farmer moved West, gets FOR NOTHING a quarter section of one hundred and sixty acres of land, for which the Eastern farmer has paid sixteen thousand dollars. And that Western land, rich virgin soil, needs no fertilizer.

How can the Eastern farmer compete in wheat raising or corn producing with the Westerner who gets his land free and a crop for the mere cost of the seed and ploughing?

The Eastern farmer cannot compete. He goes to the wall, gives up farming, or moves West.

This giving away of the Western lands and this impoverishing of the Eastern farmer have been going on for years. Yet nobody raises any protest about the vested interests of the Eastern farmer, or the criminal Government competition.

As a matter of fact, though the farmers have suffered, the country as a whole has been benefited.

It is to the interests of all the people that our great Western lands should be put under cultivation. The interests of all mankind demand that those great, fertile plains should be made, as quickly as possible, to yield their hundreds of millions of bushels of grain. It would have been a crime to keep them vacant and unproductive simply to protect the capital of the farmers invested in the East. The greatest good to the greatest number rules, and in consequence the farmers suffer.

But why is it that millions of FARMERS can be treated in this way, submitted to competition that means ruin, without a word being said, while the mere suggestion of Government competition with the RAILROADS sends everybody into spasms?

If the Government, by absolutely giving away farm lands, can rightly destroy the opportunity of a million farmers, why should it not establish its own railroads, even if it should compel a few dozen Vanderbilts, Morgans and others to live on only a million, or only half a million dollars a year each?

Of course, the reasons are clear. The farmer has no effective organization, he is beaten individually, and has not learned how to protect himself collectively.

The millionaires who own the railroads and express companies—all public monopolies—are banded closely together. They own the Government, they select the public officials and control them in office.

The farmers ought to unite, and join hands with all other classes of workers against whom plutocracy conspires, to help manage this country for the benefit of those who really own it.

If the Government can afford, in the interests of all, to compete with the little farmer who lives alongside the New York Central Railroad, it should not hesitate to compete with the New York Central Railroad itself—also in the interests of all.

Mr. Martyr

He Really Enjoys a Sizzling Hot Wave

I DON'T know why it is, Mrs. Martyr, that every time I come home at night I should be forced to listen to your eternal complaints about this, that and the other thing. You don't seem to understand that when a man has done a hard day's work he looks to those at home to comfort and cheer him, instead of everlastingly talking about their own trifling troubles and petty annoyances.

Here you are growling about the hot weather. Hot weather! Pshaw! Why, it hasn't even begun to be hot weather yet.

You only make yourself and every one around you all the hotter by talking about it, and this day has been a perfect one, here in Somerville.

Now, if you had been down at the office to-day you might have had reason to complain. It was so hot that every time I touched the safe it burned my hands, and when my stenographer put her head out of the window to inquire who won the handicap for me she singed her hair.

I sat there and sweltered and sweltered, my nerves were racked by the terrific heat, and I was almost a dead man at the close of the day, yet I said never a word of complaint, nor do I now.

That is philosophy, a quality which women never have.

The least little thing sets you to moaning and groaning, as if the end of the world had come, because you have neither philosophy nor sense of humor, while I have both.

Now, what do I care if the weather is hot? I tell myself that I cannot help it, and let it go at that.

I don't see why you keep the windows closed here. There's not a breath of air stirring, and on a night like this it's like an oven.

Oh, no, you didn't tell me anything of the kind. You said it was hot in the daytime, and you know very well that it is always cool up here in the daytime. It is the night air that gets hot.

It is positively suffocating now, all because you have had the windows shut all day.

The noise of the children drives me wild and that miserable cousin of yours is practicing again. Tell her to stop it this instant. I should not lack the moral courage to abate a nuisance in my own house, I trust.

Oh, Cousin Agatha, good evening. Mrs. Martyr and I were just enjoying your music so much. Isn't it hot to-night? I really can't endure it any longer, and I'm going down to a rathskeller to cool off. I'm sorry I can't take you ladies, but really it's not so bad here. A breeze will come up in a few minutes, and then it will be delightful.

Good-night. Remember, all you need is a little philosophy, and the weather won't affect you any more than it does me.

Song for Mr. Paul Morton

The Railroad Man Who Is the New Secretary of the Navy

By James Montague

With No Apologies to Mr. W. S. Gilbert.

WHEN I was a lad I went to work
At a low-cut desk as a railroad clerk
I learned the rates from Mackinac
To Philadelphia and back;
I learned so many freight rates then
That now I'm Secretary of the U. S. N.

I soon found out that I'd rather prefer
To be a general manager.
My duty, which I did with ease,
Was firing most of the employes;
I can fire guns as I fired men—
Now I'm Secretary of the U. S. N.

As manager I achieved such fame
That I soon sat in the financial game.
Though from water I'd always held aloof,
I found the stocks were not waterproof;
And I learned so much about water then,
That now I'm Secretary of the U. S. N.

Now all young men who'd rule the sea
For the great and glorious G. O. P.
Mu work at a desk without cessation
For the interests of some corporation.
Keep away from the guns and stick to the pen
And you'll some day be the ruler of the U. S. N.

Little Editorials from the People

THE BOSTON AMERICAN welcomes its growing army of correspondents, who write their views on the many questions in which they are interested, but for the sake of all, and in order to give the hundreds who write to it a chance, it is requested that all make their "little editorials" very brief. Letters of from 100 to 200 words will speedily appear. Longer ones must wait, and are likely never to see the light.

A WAR POEM FROM MAINE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

You will find inclosed short poem, which I hope you will be able to publish in your paper.

JAPAN.

Let the victor's bright crown and green laurel wreath
Be placed on the brow of that child of the East.

May he triumph in battle, by land and on sea,
Till his home from invasion and danger is free.

Retreating, the minions of Russia shall fly
From the gleam of his blade and flash of his eye.

Swept back in confusion, o'er river and plain,
They number by thousands their wounded and slain.

Go forward and onward, you faithful and tried,
Brave heroes undaunted, your country's pride.

Fame stamps you immortal, ye sons of Nippon,
With glory as bright as the world are looked on.

Emblazoned forever that glory will shine,
A beacon of bright o'er that island of China.

Bath, Me. B. J. GILLKER.

VULNERABLE POINT OF THE TRUSTS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have read with very great interest your remarks suggested by the fourth anniversary of the Chicago American. I desire to ask your attention to the important truth (as I believe it to be) that there is no other vital point at which the trusts can be assailed except their possession of legal privileges.

It has been truly said that government cannot give to any citizen a privilege without depriving other citizens of their rights. The laws which grant, without full compensation to the public treasury, monopolies of natural opportunities, especially those which enable individual citizens or corporations to appropriate communal values of land, rights of way, terminal facilities, etc., are utterly subversive of public liberty and well-being. On these lines only can trusts be successfully controlled.

FROM A PROVIDENCE ADMIRER.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a warm admirer of your gifted proprietor, William Randolph Hearst.

Providence. GEORGE SCOTT.

LIKES ITS ORIGINALITY.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a warm admirer of the BOSTON AMERICAN for many reasons, but the thing I like particularly is its originality and individuality. I admire Mr. Hearst and all connected with him who so successfully furnish me with a paper that is worth reading. D. W. PERKINS.

Saco, Me.

WHERE SOME OF THE BEEF IS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

You wouldn't think there was any scarcity of meat if you could look on the yards of the Boston & Maine railroad at Nashua Junction. Between twenty and thirty refrigerator cars have been there for three days. They pull them up and tea them every evening, then run them back on a side track. I am telling facts. A NASHUAN.

Nashua.

ADMIRER OF ENTERPRISE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a subscriber to the afternoon edition of your valuable paper, which I receive here at 3:10 p. m., same day as published. To satisfy my friends that I was not a disciple of Ananias, when I told them of your wonderful enterprise in sending here your paper at about the same time it is sold in Boston, I had to take some of them with me to the Postoffice, where they could see for themselves. JULES GUISSART.

Togus, Me.

PRAISE FOR THOMAS W. LAWSON'S TRUST EXPOSE.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I want to claim enough of your valuable space to make a suggestion, viz—that the AMERICAN keep before its readers the necessity of reading Thomas W. Lawson's expose of the methods employed by the "money powers" to fleece its victims.

I had no idea what would be the exact nature of the article until I read the preliminary remarks pertaining to the same in your Sunday issue of recent date.

There is an excellent chance here for the public to get an insight into the system of wholesale plunder which is going on unchecked. S. P.

Fitchburg, Mass.
